TARBOX SUED FOR $25,000

Papers were filed to-day in the Superior Court in Suffolk County in the $25,000 suit of William P. Devine of Dorchester, against Bernard L. Tarbox, a wealthy member of the Alden & Tarbox corporation, a real conveyer, with an office at No. 101 Milk street, this city, who eloped several weeks ago with Gertrude May Devine, the nineteen-year-old daughter of the plaintiff.

The action was forecasted last month by filing an attachment of $100,000 against the property of Mr. Tarbox, but the exact nature of the charges upon which the suit is based was not made public by Carroll & Flye, Mr. Devine's attorneys, until to-day.

Tarbox is twenty-six years old and a member of one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in Bath, Me. His fortune is estimated at $25,000. Miss Devine was his stenographer and a beautiful and accomplished girl.

History of the Case.

About two months ago Mr. Devine says Tarbox and Miss Devine went to Woonsocket, R. I., and were married in the parsonage of the Globe Congregational Church there by Rev. Hugh F. Hughes, notwithstanding the fact that Tarbox had on November 25, 1908, married Miss Blanche F. Matthews of Bath, Me., in the latter city.

Mr. Devine went to Woonsocket and asked that Tarbox be arrested on the charge of bigamy. As a result of this application Chief of Police Lowell J. Boston of Woonsocket prepared and had printed a postal card containing a picture of Tarbox and reading as follows:

WANTED FOR BIGAMY—BERNARD L. TARBOX—Twenty-six years old, 5 feet 7 inches, 165 pounds, well built, quite deaf, holds head little to left when talking or listening, medium brown hair, good color from outdoor life, full face, hair cut rather close, pompadour effect, dresses neatly in dark clothing and in good taste, ears, while not large, are prominent, and stand out from head, pleasant voice. Address LOWELL J. BOSTON, Chief of Police, Woonsocket, R. I.

Across Country in Auto.

After leaving Rhode Island, Tarbox and Miss Devine journeyed across country in his automobile and after being traced in New York State were next heard from in Canada. Mrs. Blanche Matthews, the wife of Tarbox who was wedded in November and discarded in June, went to live with her husband's mother, Mrs. Aaron Tarbox, in Bath.

There are two counts in the suit filed in behalf of Miss Devine's father to-day. It is alleged that Tarbox had grossly injured Miss Devine and enticed her from her father's home. Mr. Devine says he has been deprived of her services and that the feelings of the family and himself have been wounded. He says Tarbox's conduct has caused mortification and disgrace. The father thinks he is entitled to $25,000 damages.

DIVORCE A MERCY TO WOMAN, JUDGE RICHARDSON SAYS

Upon a petition by a wife asking for an order restraining the husband from imposing restraint upon her personal liberty, pending divorce proceedings, in which cruelty was alleged, Judge Richardson of the Superior Court said to-day:

"The laws of Massachusetts in respect to divorce are founded on mercy —in a large majority of cases, as to practical results—mercy to woman.

"Those persons who talk against divorce and the divorce court, mistake, among other errors, the cause for the consequence. Divorce is the consequence. Divorce is the consequence of habitual drunkenness, cruelty, desertion and other crimes which are justifiable grounds for divorce, and not the cause of them. To say that divorce, under the laws of this State, causes the crimes for which divorce is allowed, is no less absurd than it would be to say the law for the punishment of thieves produces or causes larceny.

"The divorce court is an institution of civilization. Barbarians are not troubled by the 'law's delay,' or a process of a court; they dispose of an undutiful spouse more summarily; it is only within the last half century—and under government purely secular—that married women have had adequate protection by law in respect to their property or persons."

B. & M. MEETS NEW RATE CUT

The Boston & Maine railroad forwarded to the Interstate Commerce Commission this afternoon a new freight schedule, making still further reductions in import freight rates to meet new freight cuts filed Saturday by the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania and the Reading lines.

When the latest lines began cutting import freight rates to draw traffic away from New England, President Tuttle announced that the Boston & Maine would meet every reduction, cut for cut.

Saturday the Baltimore & Ohio, the Reading and the Pennsylvania filed their latest changes, cutting the commodity rate 1 cent per 100 pounds and the class rates slightly. This made the third reduction in class rates and the fourth reduction in commodity rates.

Their action, however, has only two days' start over that of the Boston & Maine, which forwarded to-day a new schedule to meet the cuts. Thirty days are required by the Interstate Commerce Commission before the new schedules go into effect.

KAISER'S BOAT WINS AT COWES

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Aug. 2.—With the finest yachts in the world competing, among them two owned by Emperor William, the Cowes regatta opened to-day.

The chief race was for the big boats over a fifty-mile course. Emperor William's Meteor and Germania were the scratch boats giving time to Shamrock, White Heather and Cicely. At the end of the second round, the German yachts were in such a commanding position that the others dropped out. Germania finished first, but as she crossed on the wrong side of the finish line the prize was awarded to the Meteor.

The international challenge cup, valued at $1,250 for fifteen metre yachts, was won by Ostara, a British entry. The Spanish yacht Tuiza was second. King Alfonso's Hispania did not start.

REDEMPTORIST JUBILEE.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 2.—The silver jubilee of the establishment of the Order of the Most Holy Redeemer in St. John by the Redemptorist fathers is being celebrated in St. Peter's Church.

SUFFRAGISTS AT CLINTON

CLINTON, Aug. 2.—The suffragists who are campaigning through Massachusetts held three meetings here during the noon hour. They spoke at the gates of the cotton, gingham, carpet and wire mills. There were big crowds of operatives at each place and the suffragists left for Leominster, where another meeting will be held later to-day, highly pleased with their reception. They obtained many signatures to their suffrage petition. The first signer here was the chief of police.

The speakers were Mrs. Hartley Dennett, Miss Edith Haynes, Miss Alfretta McClure and Mrs. Richard T. Plaisted. At the carpet mill the gateman delayed the 1 o'clock signal to enable the operatives to remain listening to the speeches until the last moment. They were given several cheers.

Mrs. Plaisted spoke to the wire mill men from the steps of that plant, and besides the workers, who were enjoying the noon hour, she had for auditors many women, who leaned out of windows and gave her eager attention.

The suffragists will speak at Fitchburg at 7 o'clock this evening.

The AMERICAN is the Great Home Paper.

JOHNSON PUTS UP $5,000 FOR FIGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—George Little, representing Jack Johnson, champion of the world, as manager, posted $5,000 with Ed W. Smith, sporting editor of the Chicago American, at noon to-day in acceptance of James J. Jeffries's challenge to box for the title.

Little made no particular fuss over the little function. He entered the office unattended, announced that he was in a hurry to catch a train for Detroit, where he is to join Johnson, laid down five new $1,000 bills, and said that it was intended to cover the Jeffries money now in New York, asking at the same time that it be transferred to the Evening Journal of that city. After getting a receipt for the money Little hurried for the railroad station.

There is no string of conditions attached to the money at this time. It is posted in all sincerity, just as, presumably, Jeffries' money was. It will be forwarded at once to New York, as an accommodation to the Johnson party.

"Let's see which of us is bluffing on four dashing," said Little this noon.

"All we ask is that Jeffries appoint a time for meeting us in Newark city to talk over the proposed match in a business-like and sportsman-like manner. Any day after Wednesday, on which day we show in Toronto, will suit us.

Ready for Meeting.

"Surely there is nothing improbable about that. If Jeffries will do this we can find out just where we stand and get down to business at once. As long as we stand and talk at long range nothing will ever come of this argument.

"If we get together and get each other's ideas it can be fixed up in a hurry. Then the public, now sick of senseless talk, will be glad to find out which side is sincere. We have no fear of such a meeting.

"Of this one thing I want to warn him before he goes into executive session with us: Great fighter though he once was, he is not champion at the present time, and mustn't think that he can dictate to us as if he were champion. Jack Johnson is champion of the world, and will have something to say about the details of this match.

"Mind you, we have no thought of asking anything unreasonable. Neither do we want him to expect to have the better of it in the terms. The better man in this fight, if it is arranged, is going to carry off the big end of the money. That's going to be the note of our negotiations with the former champion. While Jeffries leaned his terms in a dictatorial manner, as if we were coming on hands and knees to curry favor with him, we are going to pay no attention to that.

Seeking No Favors.

"If we meet we will start right at the beginning and work up a fight match—a match in which the public may have confidence, one that will decide this great question. We want no favors and will give none. Any place will suit us for the battle. Even his own club in Los Angeles would be agreeable to us.

"England, where over $100,000 could easily be obtained, would suit us, or Australia, although I think that is out of the question."

THAW IN RAGE AT EVIDENCE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Harry Thaw went to pieces to-day under Jerome's relentless questioning in the lunacy proceedings to obtain the liberty of Stanford White's slayer from the Matteawan Asylum for the criminal insane.

It was the most dramatic day of any in the hearing, with the exception of the time when Thaw himself was on the stand and when Evelyn Nesbit Thaw gave her testimony.

The belief was common throughout the courtroom this afternoon that Thaw had materially damaged his own case by his uncontrolled exhibition of impatience and nervousness.

Thaw Jumps from Chair.

While District Attorney Jerome was reading evidence adduced at former trials to show the young Pittsburger insane, Thaw became intensely irritable. He restrained himself as long as possible, but finally jumped from his chair and paced nervously back and forth, while Jerome continued to hammer in his attacks. Thaw's mother, too, showed signs of breaking down under the strain.

Every action of Thaw was observed by Justice Mills, and right here is where the Thaw's danger. Justice Mills has within his power to end at any time the hearing and, if he believes Thaw still insane, to remand the prisoner to the asylum.

All of Evelyn Thaw's dramatic, pathetic and startling story of her relations with Stanford White, as related on the witness stand in the first murder trial, were brought out anew.

It was Jerome's unlooked-for announcement that he would go into this pitiful story that caused Thaw to lose his self-control, although he began to show signs of nervousness when Jerome began to delve into records to prove insanity in the Thaw family.

Reads Insanity Records.

After a great mass of testimony re-read from the two murder trials, the same testimony which caused Thaw to spring from his seat, Mr. Jerome said:

"I will now read the testimony of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw in relation to the story she told Thaw in Paris in 1903, when he asked her to be his wife. I do not wish to read all of it, as the disgusting details have too often been gone over."

"Then I will have to read it," said Mr. Morschauser, Thaw's attorney. "It will explain the construction Mr. Jerome wants to place on the testimony."

This assurance that again Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's story of the alleged illtreatment at the hands of Stanford White would be read, caused a few of the spectators who were prepared to leave the room to return to their seats.

"When I told him the story of White Mr. Thaw became terribly excited. He bit his nails and cried aloud, 'My God! my God!'" Mrs. Thaw had said," read the lawyer. "He sobbed aloud and was restless, continually biting his nails."

"When we were at the Grand Union Hotel in 1904, Mr. Thaw told me as my life had been ruined by White and that I had nothing to live for he thought it best for me to commit suicide with him. He had the time and place all fixed.

"We were to go to the Waldorf, get rooms, and at 3:30 we were to both take laudanum. At the time he was very much excited, and I agreed with him in order to keep him quiet."

COAL TEAMSTERS ARE LOOKING FOR GAMES

The Coal Teamsters' Union of Boston has the baseball fever, and now stand ready to tackle anything short of the Red Sox for the pure fun of the thing. On the latter club, "The Metson Coal Company" nine, tackled the Metropolitans Saturday, and was trimmed by a score of 11 to 7, in the cool drivers' nattery being Clancy and Bigger with Hanley and Barnes in the points for their opponents, John J. Fenton umpired. All communications relative to future games should be addressed to John J. Fenton, business agent of the Union, Union No. 215, Milan Park, who states that his team is showing more class than Matt of late, and predicts great things for its future.

JOHN ALDEN KINDRED MEET AT DUXBURY

The Alden kindred of America will hold their annual meeting at Duxbury on Thursday next. Those eligible to membership are the descendants of John Alden and his wife, Priscilla Mollines, of Pilgrim fame. A tent has been erected near the old John Alden home, now owned by the organization, where Rev. Herbert C. Delano, who is the fourth chair at Vanderbilt University, will make the chief address. Mrs. Susan Smith of Kingston will read a paper and Henry W. Litchfield will read a poem. They are descendants of John Alden and wife.

LEAGUE SUSPENDS.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 2.—For the first time in the history of the Southern League all games will be postponed in honor of the dead to-day. POLICE BUSY AFTER EXPOSURE, ARREST TWENTY-ONE WOMEN

The story of the Boston police force in the SUNDAY AMERICAN yesterday, in which attention was called to the fact that the police fritter away their time in looking after trivial things and making arrests for minor offenses while the big criminals roam the streets free, has created a sensation throughout the city.

Many letters have already been received at this office in which the writers declare that the conditions as portrayed in the article are not only true but that the picture has not been painted in sufficiently strong colors. Some of the letters are printed to-day.

As soon as the story read in the AMERICAN yesterday was published the police got busy. As a result twenty-one women were arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day before Judge Murray. They were gathered in for the most part on Tremont street and in the vicinity of East Dedham street. They ranged in ages from about eighteen to thirty-five years.

Cases Continued.

In most instances their cases were continued until Wednesday for final disposal. When so many women made their appearance in the courtroom at one time there was great surprise among the court officials.

"What's up?" one official asked a policeman.

"The AMERICAN is getting after us and so we got busy, that's all," was the reply.

It was more arrests than had been made on any evening for a long time on the same charge. In consequence the word has been circulated among women to be on the alert, the tip coming from the police themselves in many instances.

In surrounding of the general negligence and incompetence of the force, it may be mentioned that during the past twenty-four hours with 1,500 men on duty and being paid by the city, only two arrests were made that were deemed of sufficient consequence to be put on the calendar.

Record of Arrests.

The two arrests made were out of very great importance as the following records show:

Arrested Sunday, August 1, at 12:40 a. m. by officers of Station 9, Frederick Reed, aged twenty-one, home unknown, for assault and battery on Watchman A. Higgins, aged seventy years, of the Elevated Railroad at the Dudley street terminal. Higgins was taken to the City Hospital in the ambulance of Station 9.

Arrested on the afternoon of August 1, no time given. Arrest made by police inspectors. Thomas W. Wright, colored, aged twenty-one, single, living at No. 81 Camden street. Charged with the larceny of a lady's watch and chain, valued at $75, the property of Mrs. McAfee of Falconer street, East Boston. The larceny occurred at Foster's wharf. Also for the larceny at the same place of $150 from a Mr. Almeda. Property recovered.

Pierce Takes Action.

Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara, the real "czar" by grace of gubernatorial impediment, has on appointment "nine eight," is on a two weeks' vacation in New Hampshire, having left yesterday.

Acting Commissioner Pierce, who ordinarily fills the office of superintendent of the police department, but no time when he reached his office to-day in trying to remedy some of the conditions exposed by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN yesterday.

Although no official order has yet been sent out, the word has gone forth through the rank and file of the department that "street-walkers must be arrested, more attention must be paid to pickpockets and other root crooks, and less to offending newsboys," and that "gambling in stationhouses must be stopped before the AMERICAN gets on to it."

The crusade against "night walkers" is on with a vengeance. Orders have been given, quietly and without the flourish of a general order, to round up the women who ply nightly along Washington, Tremont, Bolyston and neighborhood streets.

It is the liveliest crusade of this sort

NEW CITY LAMP BIDS ARE OPENED

Three bids for supplying the city of Boston with gas lamps, ranging in price from $5.75 to $9.85, were received in the office of the superintendent of supplies this after noon.

After the opening of the bids Superintendent of Streets Emerson announced that the Boston Consolidated Gas Company had made an offer to care for and light the lamps, besides furnishing gas, at $23.51 per lamp, a figure which he deems much lower than any yet submitted.

In the system of the city purchasing the own gas lamps at an expenditure of approximately $70,000, Superintendent Emerson estimates an annual depreciation on the value of each lamp of 25 cents. Interest on the money invested at 5 per cent at 37½ cents per lamp annually, which two figures added to the estimate of the gas company would make the annual price of the lamp $24.03½ cents. Under the present contract the city pays $24.50 per lamp.

Of the bids for lamps submitted, but one was for vertical mantles such as are used at present. This was from the American Gas Company. Simply Consolidated and offered to furnish the complete lamp for $5.75.

The Ramsdell Inverted Gas Lamp Company of New York offered to furnish their lamp complete for $9.85 cents each. The Gleason Co., through its representative, William A. Ruauf, bid $7.50 per lamp. All three bids were taken under advisement and the award will be announced later. A duty-candlepower lamp must be furnished by the company which secures the contract.

Representatives of the Lamplighters' Union were present when the bids were opened. It is understood that they will oppose the awarding of a contract for furnishing gas and lighting and caring for the lamps to the gas company unless some provision is made for the lamplighters who are at present employed by the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company in lighting and extinguishing the lamps under the present contract.

NO BASEBALL TODAY; TRIBUTE TO PULLIAM

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 2.—The funeral of the late executive of the National League, Harry C. Pulliam, takes place this afternoon at Cave Hill cemetery, here. The actual pallbearers are college mates of Pulliam from the University of Virginia. The honorary pallbearers will be Ban Johnson, President of the American League, John E. Bruce, Secretary Farrell of the National Association, and other league presidents.

Ban Johnson is so much upset over the death of his colleague of the National commission that he has called off all the games that are scheduled for to-day in the American League.

Action of this kind was taken by the eight presidents of the National League this afternoon, after they had had a telegraphic communication with Acting President Heydler.

NO HAS BEEN IS FLANDERS AT 50

Former Selectmen Levi Flanders of Wakefield is to-day celebrating his fiftieth birthday and receiving the congratulations of friends. Just to show that he is no has been he swam the full length of Lake Quashapowitt, a mile and a quarter, in an hour and five minutes. He was accompanied by Chester A. Collins in a canoe. He finished as fresh as a daisy. To an AMERICAN reporter he said: "When I was a boy I used to swim the lake every day, and suppose I swam down and back without stopping. I would have swam back to-day only I did not want to take any chances. I feel just like a four-year-old."

REIGN OF TERROR IN SPAIN

PARIS, Aug. 2.—One hundred and nineteen revolutionists and leaders in the revolt at Barcelona were executed to-day by soldiers, after having been condemned by court-martial, according to information just received from across the border.

The Province of Catalonia is in a state of real anarchy. The laborers and striking workmen, infuriated by the killing of their leaders, are revenging themselves by pillage and rapine. They are sweeping over the coast towns, sacking homes and factories and public and religious buildings, shooting down indiscriminately where resistance is offered. None is spared.

At Palmos, a French factory was burned because the manager refused to allow the workmen to join the strike and then the manager was shot down while defending his family from the rioters.

Armed insurgents have thrown out a cordon twenty miles outside of Barcelona and all the newspaper correspondents have been warned not to try to enter the city. Skirmishing and desultory firing between looters and citizens who are trying to protect their families and property is going on all the time.

Catalonia is a riot of blood and gunpowder. Steamers arriving at the port of Vendres report that they heard heavy artillery and musketry fire at a number of points along the Catalonia coast. This indicates that the battle between the troops and rebels has become general throughout the province.

REBELS DECREE KING MUST DIE; RENEW FIGHTING

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The fighting between the troops and the revolutionists in Barcelona continues, and that section of the city occupied by the rebels is constantly swept by the cannon of Montjuich fortress.

It is reported that forty rebels have been shot without trial in the Montjuich fortress, among them being Emiliano Iglesias, editor of the Progresso, the organ of Deputy Lerroux, leader of the Barcelona Republicans.

The strike centring in the Barcelona district became aggravated throughout Spain to-day and simultaneously the advanced political parties decreed death for King Alfonso and Prime Minister Maura.

Madrid is to-day the storm centre, and Spain verges on a state of anarchy. A multitude of arrests are being made, already 400 strikers and rioters are in jail in Madrid, and the soldiery about the capital is being strengthened. The people are demanding the abdication of Alfonso. He is preparing to flee. He leaves to-day for San Sebastian when he can motor quickly to France.

NORTHERN SPAIN IN TURMOIL, BIG STRIKES PLANNED

BAYONNE, France, Aug. 2.—Reliable news regarding the situation in Spain, received here to-day from San Sebastian, represents conditions as very grave throughout the northern part of the country, where all the troubles first began. Many of the Spaniards had only just disembarked, and were without rations.

ON THE VERGE

150 CHURCHES FALL PREY TO SPANISH MOBS

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Refugees arriving at the French frontier to-day say that 150 churches and convents have been destroyed by mobs in the Barcelona district. The insurgents have seized the municipal buildings.

Executions in great numbers are going forward daily at Montjuich fortress, outside Barcelona.

The refugees told of several municipalities proclaiming a republic, and declared that entire districts are in the hands of rebels and is still being waged throughout the province.

1,000 KILLED AND 25,000 WOUNDED IN BARCELONA

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Censored despatches from Madrid contain the following:

Order has been restored in Barcelona. The streets are being cleared and the shops are reopening. A gas supply soon will be available.

The government is arresting all leaders in the strike movement, including the members of the strike committee, but a general strike is probable in Madrid and also at Bilbao and at Saragossa. The captain general of Barcelona estimates that 1,000 persons were killed and 25,000 wounded in the suppression of the revolt in that city. Forty revolutionists were shot, among them Emiliano Iglesias, manager of the Progreso newspaper, which belonged to former Deputy Lerroux, the leader of the Barcelona revolution.

The railway is interrupted beyond Gerona, which is occupied by troops. A number of ships are unable to leave the port of Barcelona, and a mob is preventing the landing of cargoes.

SPANIARDS DIE LIKE SHEEP IN FRONT OF MOORS

ORAN, Algeria, Aug. 2.—The steamship Emir came in here to-day from Melilla, and her officers, referring to the fighting there between the Spaniards and the Moors on July 27, say the Spaniards made the mistake of advancing in solid masses through a gorge dominated on both sides by hills, whence the enemy moved them down as fast as they issued from the pass.

The unfortunate soldiers of Spain did not know where the fusillades came from. The butchery was terrible. Many of the Spaniards had only just disembarked, and were without rations.

12 TORPEDO BOATS WILL 'FIGHT' FLEET

The Atlantic torpedo flotilla, consisting of twelve torpedo boats, will leave the Charlestown Navy Yard at 7 o'clock this night and proceed to Provincetown, where a secret attack on the fleet will be made. The order came as a surprise, for the previous instructions being that the flotilla should sail to Hampton Roads Wednesday to meet the fleet there.

The flotilla is in three divisions, in chief command of Lieutenant-Commander Frederick N. Freeman. Lieutenant Willis C. Mitchell commands the second division and Lieutenant James O. Richardson the third. The flotilla consists of the following torpedo boats: Worden, Blakeley, De Long, Shubrick, MacDonough, Thornton, Tingey, Wilkes, Stockton, Biddle, Dupont and Foster.

The special service squadron, consisting of the cruisers New York, Montana and North Carolina, will arrive at the navy yard to-morrow night, coming from the Mediterranean, where they have been doing special duty for two months. A wireless message from the flagship to-day gave their position as eight hundred miles east of Boston Light.

The general Naval Board appointed by the Secretary to consider the question of the navy personnel went into secret session to-day in building No. 107 at the navy yard. It consists of Rear-Admiral Swift, commandant of the yard, president; Captain Vreeland, Captain Sidney Stanton, Commander John M. Poyer, Commander Roy C. Smith, Lieutenant-Commander George W. Logan and Lieutenant Lloyd H. Chandler.

The cruiser Prairie will arrive at the navy yard Wednesday to take a crew of Marines from the battleship Illinois to be distributed through the fleet. The Illinois will go out of commission and be remodelled into a modern ship. The work will take two years and cost about $2,000,000.

MOONLIGHT SAIL OF FIREMEN ON AUG. 4

The members of Local Union 242 of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen will hold their second annual moonlight excursion Wednesday evening, August 4, on the steamship Governor Ames, which will leave Rowes wharf at 8 o'clock. There will be dancing, and a light luncheon will be served aboard ship. In order to enable the members to catch the 12 o'clock train, the trim little steamer will dock at 11:45.

MILK STATIONS CUT DEATH RATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Dr. A. R. Green, the personal representative of Nathan Straus, who was sent to report on the progress made by the Straus Pasteurized milk stations established abroad, returned to-day. He said the station at Copenhagen, near Berlin, had cut the death rate in half among those who had taken the milk.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Cuban Cabinet Men In Big Land Fraud.

HAVANA—The members of the Cabinet whom President Gomez has dismissed, Senors Laguerceia and Alberdi, are the two who were alleged to be implicated in the attempted fraud in connection with the purchase of additional land for Camp Columbia. President Gomez issued a decree authorizing the Secretary of the Government to negotiate for these lands, which were needed for the new army. The owning company offered the land for $146,000, but the officials handling the matter informed the company's selling agent that the price must be put down in the deed as $400,000. The company, refusing to be a party to any such swindle, says its price was $146,000, the selling agent bought the land himself, paying the price asked, and, it is said, resold it to the Government officials for $400,000, leaving $254,000 graft to be divided. President Gomez issued a decree annulling the authorization of the purchase.

Art Gems in Old Church.

ROME—The officials engaged in the work of restoring the Church of St. Giuliano at Venice discovered recently in the attic a large bundle covered with thick dust. It was removed to a museum and examined. The bundle was found to contain a number of art masterpieces, including a "Christ on Calvary" by Tintoretto, a "Resurrection" and an "Ecce Homo" by Palma, Jr., a "Flagellation of Christ" and a "Christ Crowned with Thorns" by Corona, "Young St. Jerome" and "St. Theodore" by Andrea Vincentino, and two paintings by Paul Flammengo.

Y. M. C. A. World Congress Ends.

BARMEN, Germany—The conference of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday discussed work among soldiers and sailors. Prince Bernadotte of Sweden presided. The conference ended closed with the recitation of the Lord's Prayer in English, French and German. Forty great meetings were held in Barmen and Elberfeld, and evangelistic services were conducted in the evening.

Discover Big Opium Plot.

MANILA—The government is pressing the investigation of what appears to be an extensive opium smuggling plot which was brought to light by the discovery and seizure of 460 pounds of opium and seventy-two ounces of cocaine aboard in a shipment of mining machinery from Hong Kong.

20,000 Homeless by Fire.

KOBE—The great fire which started in Osaka lasted thirty-six hours, and burned an area of four square miles, destroying 13,000 houses. More than 20,000 persons are homeless.

PARIS—It is reported here that France intends to call an international conference to discuss the question of aviation.

WHITE CITY IS MECCA FOR MANY

To-day and to-morrow are red letter days at White City, Worcester, the great park on the bank of Lake Quinsigamond, where the SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club is gathering afternoon and evening and using, like real money, the free tickets published in the SUNDAY AMERICAN. The coupons give a ten-cent seat in the mammoth theatre, a ten-cent ride in "Ye" Nichols' Chutes, in addition there are five half-fare tickets which, used for the Chutes, Scenic Railway, Airships, Flying Horses or Paradise, give ten cents' worth of amusement for five cents and a free ticket. Watch the announcement for the coming week.

LOSES EYE FROM AUTO ACCIDENT

Spencer Trask of New York lost his left eye as a result of attending the performance of "Joan of Arc" by Maude Adams at the Harvard Stadium. By coming to Boston to see the remarkable production Mr. Trask got into an automobile accident and his eye was injured. Everything that science could do was done to save the eye, but a Saturday dispatch states that surgeons finally had to remove the eye to save the other. The operation being performed at the Trask Summer home at Lake George.

BALK BREAK AT OLD HOME OF DR. ELIOT

The famous house at No. 17 Quincy street, on "Professors' Row," Cambridge, where President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard lived during his long regime at that university, was visited early to-day by two burglars who tried to effect an entry. They were scared away by the caretaker.

Two other houses were visited later in the morning by two men, presumably the same ones who tried the Eliot place.

At 12:30 the Brattle square police station received a telephone call from William Garland, caretaker at the Eliot house, that a burglary had been attempted there. Patrolmen Largeston and Ireland went to the house. Largeston, who sleeps on the second floor, told them that he heard a noise at 12:30 as if someone stumbling up the trellis. He ran to the window and heard a man say "jump." There were sounds of someone landing heavily on the ground, then Garland spied two men running away in the darkness.

At 2:30 Patrolman Largeston and Ireland went out on a telephone call from the residence of J. H. Edmands, No. 61 Garden street. They found that a domestic in the house had heard some one at a rear window shortly before. She screamed. "Police" and some to the window saw two men disappearing over a back fence.

At 5:30 the same patrolmen were sent to the home of George O. G. Coles of No. 53 Church street, in answer to telephone notice that burglars had entered the house by a rear window. The police were not told at that time that anything had been stolen or not.

All three houses are in one of the best residential districts of Cambridge, where several burglaries have taken place of late.

Robert Stewart, nineteen years old, who has served several terms for various offences, was arrested by Patrolman Ireland at his home, No. 21 Murray street, Cambridge, to-day, charged with breaking and entering the Colles house. Before Judge Alley in the Cambridge court, Stewart pleaded guilty and was committed under $800 bonds for hearing to-morrow.

GLOUCESTER BOY MISSING 4 DAYS

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 2.—Lester C. Herrick, eight, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Herrick, is missing from his home on Bray street, West Gloucester. The boy left his home last Thursday morning at 11 o'clock and has not been seen nor heard of since. It is feared that the lad may have met with some accident. He was dressed in a black suit, wore a cap and black shoes and stockings.

WRIGHTS TO TEACH OFFICERS TO FLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—All future experiments with the Wright aeroplane purchased by the signal corps of the army, will be built by Wilbur, Jr., and Orville from Washington. In about ten days Wilbur and Orville will begin instructing Lieutenants Lahm and Fulton of the signal corps in the handling of the flyer. Orville Wright will sail for Germany soon to close several contracts.

POLICE FRITTER AWAY TIME WHILE BOSTON NEEDS REAL GUARDIANS

that has been waged by the police since a memorable occasion about two years ago when Police Commissioner O'Meara himself was buttonholed near the corner of Washington and Boylston street by two girls.

The rank and file of the department was given to understand that "gambling must be stopped in the stations." The usual game of domino pitch, at "five cents for game, set and post," was not running to-day in any of the stations.

Up in the South End, at Station 5, the superior officers were still directing their efforts toward finding out which one of their men got the $340 recently from Patrolman John M. Jackson's locker.

"There is no motive the clue yet," they said to-day. "We think we have it narrowed down to three men, but we're not sure."

Superior officers in the Police Department refused to-day to discuss the dictaphone in yesterday's AMERICAN. Mr. O'Meara's answer in a newspaper interview: "I don't know what they say," is taken by them as a signal to keep quiet.

One rising patrolman hazarded the remark that "you're right when you say that complaints by a citizen against a police officer are not given any attention, but it, unless the complainant happens to wear a good suit of clothes."

Criticises the Police.

These letters are of many received by the AMERICAN and published to-day:

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2, '09.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Being a constant reader of your paper, I must confess that having talked over the article printed in your last Sunday's issue with many people I have heard much praise for the reporter who wrote it, as the people are generally kept in ignorance of everything concerning police business.

If a citizen should get hold of anything and ask the police about it in the course of his business he is generally turned away without obtaining any information. They are usually told: That paper writes things that it should not."

If a reporter should seek to gain information about such breaks as the one in connection with Jackson's locker he would be turned away. It is a shame in supposed deeds done by officials, and if the public could only get the truth they would be astonished to hear some of the facts that could be told about some of the members of the department.

If some of the so-called street girls were consulted, it would be found that in many cases one-half of the money they receive is given over to the officers and that those girls who do not do this are hounded under arrest. In both the South and West Ends the officers engage in balls to steal pigeons, and many times in order that they may make good their alibi the officers they tell falsehoods, and on the strength of them persons are imprisoned who are innocent.

Sergeants with full uniforms on have repeatedly used language unbecoming an officer and have got away with it on the strength of their uniforms, where if it had been a citizen he would have been arrested.

Boston, August 2, 1909.

BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am writing you to let you know that I for one fully agree with all you say regarding O'Meara and the police department. You can rest assured that it was certainly about time someone got after O'Meara. Ever since that bandit scare when the police made such a sorrowful showing, and the present head of the police tried to make them out to be heroes with his fountain pen praises, down to the present, the police of this city have been beating all records for incompetency. Bully for the AMERICAN. You strike where that no political boss runs your paper. Good luck to the AMERICAN and Mr. Hearst.

BOLD BREAK IN HEART OF CITY, BUT POLICE IGNORANT

The fact that he had a safe strong enough to withstand an attack by amateur burglars is what A. S. Fox, manufacturer of peanut candy and salted peanuts at No. 10 Tremont street, has to thank for not finding several hundred dollars stolen from his office when he opened it to-day.

Although the Fox establishment is in the very heart of the city, the police knew nothing of the bold break and attempted robbery until the proprietor notified them to-day.

Then the news did not become public through the police.

They have no clue to the identity of the burglars.

The break occurred some time between 5:30 o'clock Saturday evening, when Mr. Fox closed the office, and 6:30 a. m. to-day, when he opened it.

The thieves found fifty cents in old coins from Mr. Fox's desk, but they wrought their chief damage since they could not open the safe.

They entered the building by a skylight from a neighboring roof and must have been familiar with the premises the police say. The sledge-hammer with which they attacked the safe was stolen from the machine shop of F. M. Thayer on the second floor. The burglars entered the machine shop by breaking in the door.

The office was a wreck when I opened it," Mr. Fox said to-day. "The safe door pried open from the inside. The thieves had used a sledge-hammer, a cold chisel, a fourth floor, through a skylight in the roof. They pried out the door of the machine shop and down to the Tank place for the sledge-hammer and the chisel. The hammer stood in front of the safe when I came in this morning. The chisel, the combination knob and the door handle were scattered on the floor.

"I don't see how they were able to make such noise without being heard by someone at least by the officers on the beat," Fox surmises me. All they got was fifty cents in old coins which were locked in the desk. They pried the desk open.

The police say the job was done by amateurs. They also say that the man who handled the sledge was left-handed. They suspect that the man who worked the combination was a gentleman thief, as a sheet of paper, used, they say, to avoid soiling his trousers, was spread on the floor in front of the safe.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trade-mark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. Conger Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., say: "Fletcher's Castoria is certainly full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

C. G. A. Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "For 30 years we have sold Fletcher's Castoria and are pleased to state that it has given universal satisfaction."

The Scholtz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has surely become a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Howard & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but good to say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

Riker's Drug Stores, of New York City, say: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the oldest and most popular preparations in our stores. We have nothing but good to say about it."

Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of patent medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is included in this few."

D. R. Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ills., say: "The increasing demand for your Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to seek out a remedy of merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Owl Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always been a believer in the 'original man protection' and have been particular never to sell anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). SAYS BLOW KILLED SAILOR ON WARSHIP PROVINCETOWN, Aug. 2.—There were two official reports to-day on the death of H. H. Foster, the sailor of the battleship Vermont, who died after being knocked out in a boxing match. Rear Admiral Schroeder says that Foster and his opponent, D. W. Williams, were posing in a boxing bout for a moving picture machine and that Foster either fell or was otherwise hurt. Medical Examiner Spencer F. Cutler, who was ordered to investigate by Chief Whitney of the State Police, says that death was caused by a blow. The report of the autopsy is that Foster died of a cerebral hemorrhage, caused by a concussion of the brain. Information regarding the case was given out by Lieutenant-Commander Marble of the Vermont, on which ship both men, who are colored, are rated as mess attendants.

Foster and Williams engaged in a bout on the quarter deck of the Vermont Saturday night. It was private to the extent that it did not have the sanction of the executive officers. At the same time Admiral Schroeder and Admiral Wainwright, with other officers, were at a boxing match on the New Hampshire.

Sailors of the Vermont say that Foster and Williams were old-time rivals, and that they had been trifling for their "exhibition" fight for a long time. Foster was knocked out, and after being taken to the washroom by shipmates was put in his hammock. In a dazed condition Sunday Dr. Edgar of the Connecticut, fleet surgeon, attended Foster, and that afternoon the colored man died. Dr. Brown performed the autopsy ordered by Admiral Schroeder, and pronounced death due to cerebral hemorrhage.

The Navy Department will take up the matter after reports have been submitted to Washington. Foster's body was sent to Chelsea to-day, where it will be buried.

CONVICTED GRAFTER IN NEW FIGHT

Exceptions in behalf of Thomas F. Maher, convicted of graft in connection with the Magalone contracts, were filed with Clerk Manning of the Superior Criminal Court today by his attorney, Francis J. Carney.

No exceptions for former Purchasing Agent Michael J. Mitchell, convicted jointly with Maher, have been filed yet. Both men are serving a sentence of one year each at the Deer Island House of Correction.

The bill of exceptions filed on behalf of Maher says: "This was a prosecution upon indictment on two counts for conspiracy to defraud the city of the purchase of flagstone, both counts being different descriptions of the same offence.

"The defendant Maher filed a plea in bar, a copy of which is hereto annexed and made part of these exceptions. The Commonwealth filed an answer to the plea near any written demurrer. The Commonwealth, however, in open court orally demurred to the plea and argument was had thereon. The demurrer of the Commonwealth was sustained and the plea overruled. The defendant, Maher, duly excepted to the same.

"The court thereupon ordered a trial on the merits before a final disposition of the plea, against the objection and exception of the defendant Maher. A trial was had on the merits and a verdict for the defendant was ordered on the second count and submitted to the jury on the first count. The jury found the defendants guilty, and thereupon the defendants received sentences for one year at hard labor in the house of correction, which sentence they are now serving.

"Wherefore the defendant Maher, being prejudiced by the foregoing orders, rules and directions of the court, which he duly excepted, prays that his exceptions may be allowed."

MYSTERY OF THE SEA IN GEM BAG

LOWELL MAN'S PICTURE A CLEW

Murder or Suicide Thought to Lie Behind Find on Steamer in New York.

Daguerreotype Taken in 1858 and Woman's Photograph Found With Valuable Jewels.

Through the location in Lowell to-day of James R. Marsh, a bachelor seventy years of age, it is believed that a mystery of the sea, in which a bag containing many valuable jewels and a very large sum of money figures, and behind which may lie a murder or suicide, will be cleared.

In the alligator bag, which was marked with the initials "G. L. W.," was a daguerreotype of years ago bearing the inscription, "James R. Marsh, Lowell, Mass., Feb. 1, 1858." The bag was found in the saloon of the steamer City of Worcester after she reached her pier in New York.

The steamship authorities believe that the owner of the bag lost either his or her life at sea between New London and New York. They are in doubt as to whether it was suicide or murder.

The old gentleman of the same name as that written under the picture of long ago is a cigar merchant. To-day he went down the bay to Naniasket with a party of his fellow Masons to enjoy a picnic.

James R. Marsh 19 years old Lowell Mass February 1st 1858 Taken Nadar & Co 1858

Photograph of woman, daguerreotype of Lowell man and inscription identifying it, found in mysterious bag on steamer.

The contents of the bag indicate that the owner of it was a woman.

On the outside of the bag are the gold initials, "G. L. W." Inside the bag there is not a card or letter to aid in identification of the owner. None of the many persons who have called in answer to an advertisement for the owner has been able to give a hint of the treasure which the bag contains.

One of the strangest facts in the mystery is that the fortune in the alligator bag was not discovered until Friday morning. From July 9 until that day it had lain, unlocked but unopened, in the office of J. A. Ganger, vice president of the steamship company. On Thursday Mr. Ganger noted that the bag had been unclaimed for an unusual period and opened it.

Several Women's Photographs.

These were the things he found:

A sum of money, which Mr. Ganger would describe only as "very, very large," two diamond rings, seven loose diamonds, a pack of playing cards, a silver whiskey flask, half filled. A copy of the New Testament, the daguerreotype which bore the name of Marsh, two gold watches, a box of cigarettes and several photographs of women. On one of these photographs had been written the name, "Hannah J. Barnard," and then erased. Only the faintest impression of the pencil revealed the name. There was a quantity of women's lingerie and a silk embroidered night robe. The photographs did not bear the names of the photographers. If one had tried to baffle all attempts to trace the owner he could not have done so more thoroughly—save for the name concealed under the old daguerreotype.

Everything in the bag, except possibly the cigarettes, indicated that the owner was a woman. Any person subject to illness or fainting spells would be likely to carry smelling salts or a flask of brandy. A poor health might carry whiskey to brace the nerves for a fatal deed.

Whether the owner of the bag leaped into the sound on the trip to New York, or was thrown into the sound by some one who could not find the booty after the deed, or whether the treasure-bearer landed safely, but for some reason feared to claim the money and the jewels—these are unanswerable questions.

Mr. Ganger is of the opinion that the owner of the bag met with a serious attack, or death, possibly through a fall. He seems as if any one alive and in his right mind would make strenuous efforts to recover such valuable property," he said to-day. "If he did not remember where he left the bag he probably would make an outcry that would be heard far and wide."

On Friday Mr. Ganger inserted the following advertisement in a newspaper:

"Will G. L. W. call at steamer City of Worcester, Twenty-fourth street and East River, and identify bag found July 9?"

Many called, but the contents of the bag they had lost tallied in no way with that of the mysterious receptacle which holds so dark a secret of life or death.

GLOUCESTER STILL URGING TAFT TO COME

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 2.—Though still holding to their belief that President Taft will be to Gloucester Wednesday for the regatta of the "Canterbury Pilgrims," the Gloucester Day Committee to-day sent a telegram to the President in which the urgent situation was explained. The committee represented to the President in the telegram that the entire success of the Gloucester Day program hinged on his presence. An assurance as to his intentions was asked. A reply is awaited with keen anxiety.

Pending the arrival of this reply, the committee still insists that the President will be here Wednesday. Chairman Tibbits of the committee had a letter from Mrs. John Hays Hammond, who was in Beverly to see Mrs. Taft yesterday, that the President was to be in Gloucester Wednesday. Mrs. Taft, however, had no further information than the letter written to her by the President last Friday.

Chairman Tibbits says: "The Gloucester Day program was arranged in honor of President Taft upon his assurance that he would attend. We have received no word from him breaking the engagement, and we feel certain that he will be with us if he possibly can.

"Postponement of the pageant has not been contemplated."

It is stated that there is a possibility of putting the pageant over twenty-four hours in case the President could easier come for Thursday than for Wednesday. Any more than this, however, is not possible, owing to the elaborate nature of the enterprise.

MISS KELLER'S THAW LETTERS IN AMERICAN

The letters written by Helen Keller to Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, were published EXCLUSIVELY YESTERDAY in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

To-day the Post of this city prints the following:

Mrs. J. A. Macy, perhaps better known by her maiden name, Miss Catherine Sullivan, the friend and teacher of Miss Helen Keller, in an exclusive interview given the Post through her husband, J. A. Macy, confirms the truth of the letters published in New York yesterday regarding Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw's friendship for Miss Keller.

The Post should have added that the letters were published exclusively in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and exclusively in New York and that the Post reprints the others to-day.

These letters were only one of a score of great news features published in yesterday's SUNDAY AMERICAN.

It is time enough now "if you want to get all the news on Sunday morning you must read the AMERICAN."

KING AND CZAR REVIEW GREAT BRITISH FLEET

COWES, England, Aug. 2.—The mighty naval power of Great Britain is assembled off Cowes to-day guarding the Czar and Czarina of Russia on their visit to King Edward. Accompanied by a powerful naval flotilla of Russian warships, the Russian imperial yacht Standart, with the Czar and Czarina on board, steamed into the harbor from Cherbourg this afternoon, accompanied by the booming of cannon and the fluttering of flags.

The Czar and the Czarina took luncheon with King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board the British imperial yacht, the first ceremony of the Czar's visit. The King and Czar afterward reviewed the British fleet of 150 ships in the Solent.

The present visit of the Czar is making international history. His mission is one of diplomacy, a mission of such moment and such delicate diplomatic texture as not to be trusted to the silent diplomats of the Great Northern Empire.

The usually peaceful harbor of Cowes to-day resembled the setting of a drama warfare.

Half Europe's Naval Power.

Ranged in a semi-circle about the Standart lay nearly half the naval strength of Europe. The great Russian squadron formed in close formation about the Standart, while further out, the Atlantic and Channel squadrons of the British navy stood at anchor in the roadstead. Torpedo boats and destroyers darted to and fwith, steamed up and down the harbor watching every craft that entered.

The magnificent sight attracted thousands of spectators to the watercourt. This being a bank holiday excursions were run into the town bringing people from far Ireland. The streets thronged with police and government agents. Hundreds of Russian police came from Cherbourg to watch for suspicious persons and to prevent Socialistic outbreaks.

The visit of the Czar is the most portentous event intercontinentally England has experienced for a long time. Ever since it was first announced, there have been Laborite and Socialistic demonstrations. King Edward's tact is being tested by this imperial visit—a visit that may make world history.

Big Diplomatic Mission.

The Czar is rounding out a series of visits which he started when he met Emperor William of Germany in the Baltic.

The next trip was into Swedish waters to visit King Gustav of Sweden. Following that the Czar made the journey, unveiling of the monument upon the battlefield of Poltava. Last week Peter the Czar went into German waters, touching at Kiel and visiting Prince Henry of Prussia.

On Saturday the Standart, with its naval convoy, arrived at Cherbourg for the visit with President Falliores of France. The impression was given out that politics would be touched upon but lightly during the course of the visits. Nevertheless, politics has been discussed, and deeply.

Never have such elaborate precautions been taken to guard the life of a monarch as Dreadnaughts formed the guard of honor for the Russian autocrat, which was a distinct departure from tradition, because formerly no armored cruisers was allowed to be such use.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra met their royal guests at Spithead. They came here late last week for the naval review on Saturday, and their presence lent additional importance to the position of Cowes upon the map of Europe.

The most splendid sight the human eye could fall upon will be presented to-night, when the great war vessels are lighted up with their thousands of lights and their searchlights are allowed to play upon the town and the horizon.

INSURGENTS FIGHT TARIFF IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Senator Aldrich to-day presented the conference report on the tariff bill. As soon as the Senate met the clerk began its reading, and after the first few items omitted page after page. Senator Heyburn of Idaho called attention to the omission and insisted that the report be read into the clerk complained. Only a few Senators remained in their seats to hear it.

Despite the avoidance of the senators that the flesh-reducing hot weather session was near an end, it was expected that the vote on the adoption of the report would be close, some experts even declaring that the vote of Vice-President Sherman would be necessary to break a tie. One senator asserted that it would take even the best efforts of President Taft to pass the report in the Senate.

Normally, the Republicans would have a majority of at least thirty, but there are thirty-two Democrats and sixty Republicans in the Senate, and Senator McKenzie of Louisiana is avowedly for the measure. Senators Beveridge of Indiana, Bristow of Kansas, Cummins and Dolliver of Iowa, Clapp and Nelson of Minnesota and La Follette of Wisconsin are certain to vote against the bill. Three others of the regular insurgents among the Republicans, whose attitude is not known, are Senators Bourne of Oregon and Crawford of South Dakota.

The revisionist insurgents watched eagerly to see what the new schedule of the surgeuts would do. These latter are the Western Republicans who became rampant over the proposition to put hides on the free list. They agreed to free hides solely upon the assurance that there would be accompanying reductions in boots and shoes. Now the free hide Senators claim that the report of the conferees betrayed them. Boots and shoes and certain manufactures of leather do receive an apparent reduction in the report, but that reduction is limited to boots and shoes and manufactures of leather that are made "from such hides" as those that are to come in free. Court decisions have held "such hides" to be those weighing twenty-five pounds or over and the hides insurgents are pointing out that it is utterly impossible for the importer of any boots and shoes and manufactures of leather to prove that they are made of hides weighing twenty-five pounds each or more.

There is a chance that the vote may be taken to-morrow, although the general expectation is that it won't be taken until Wednesday.

BEDBUG FRIEND SAYS FLETCHER

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—"As a test of your self-control the next time you see a bug approaching across the counterpane don't get excited. Instead of thinking how repulsive it is, study the color of its eyes. Consider its attractiveness. Observe its habits of thrift. Think how amiable it must be in the family and what a useful member of society it must be."

Dr. Horace Fletcher, the famous exponent of mastication, gives this advice to those who want to develop mental strength. Dr. Fletcher is giving a series of lectures on mental-culture and "Fletcherizing" or learning how to live twice as well for half the money.

"It is not difficult to rid one's self of repulsions if the point of view is changed," he continued.

"I presume that the most generally detested creature that is not altogether deadly, is the bedbug. The bedbug is more of a tradition than a fact, and many are those who slander a creature of which have never seen one of his kind.

"I am sure that many of the enemies have much if any acquaintance with him, so to the color of his eyes, his habits of thrift, amiability in his family and other qualities that serve to make a creature attractive and respectable within his sphere.

"The truth about this much-despised creature is that he is not such a warning against uncleanliness, and his odor and his bite are his notice of his warning. Instead of filling one's self with a feeling of repulsion or anger and fury over anything that affects the free circulation of the blood and stirnes and disorders the nerves of the body at sight or mention of a bedbug, the discovery should elicit the expression, 'thank you for the information.'"

HELD ON CHARGE OF STEALING $450

John Bacon, once a sailor in the navy, was arrested in Charlestown to-day on a warrant charging him with stealing $450 from Mrs. Catherine McNally. Mrs. McNally, who came here with the middlepiece from Newport, follows the ships, sells the sailors many little luxuries and cashes their checks. She charges that on Saturday, after she had cashed a check at the First National Bank, and was coming out, Bacon grabbed the money from her. He was held in $1,000 for a hearing Wednesday.

TRIPS AND FALLS THROUGH WINDOW

John J. Hurley of No. 94 Forest street, Melrose, had his nose sewed on to-day by City Physician Clarence F. Hollis, who also took five stitches in a long cut on Hurley's forehead, both wounds being the result of a fall through a window. Mrs. Hurley is in the country on a vacation. While watching in the window for Mr. Hurley tripped over a rug and fell so that his head went through a glass window. He fell back unconscious and laid there all night until to-day, when he was discovered by Daniel Sanborn, a newsboy, who saw Hurley through the window.

HELD AS THIEF ON STEAMBOAT

Thomas Wright, a colored waiter aboard the steamer Calvin Austin, who was arrested yesterday by Police Inspector Gaddis on the charge of robbing stateroms, was to-day brought before United States Commissioner Hayes. He pleaded not guilty, and was held in $1,000 for trial Tuesday. The police say passengers on the Calvin Austin have been systematically robbed for two years. They say Wright has accumulated $3,000. At the time of his arrest a bank book was found in his possession showing deposits of $250 in the last thirty days.

Wright is technically charged with stealing on the high seas. Specifically, the theft of a gold watch and chain valued at $60 is laid at his door. The watch and chain was the property of Robert E. Almsder of No. 50 Congress street. Wright gave his address to-day as No. 34 Camden street.

Wright was arrested after a series of mysterious breaks after the Calvin Austin left Boston for St John on the last trip. Inspector Gaddis of the force was a fellow passenger. When the boat arrived at St. John, Captain Kennedy of the Gaddis reported a petty theft was reported and Wright was suspected. He was found hiding in one of the life boats.

CALEB POWERS TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 2.—Caleb Powers, recently pardoned after several trials having been convicted of complicity in the assassination of Governor Goebel, has announced his candidacy for Congress.

VICTORY FOR PLASTERERS

Only thirty men are reported idle to-day out of the 500 union plasterers in this city, after a three-day strike for $5.20 a day, the others having found employment with builders and independent firms not members of the Master Plasterers' Association, under signed agreements providing for the increased wage rate. The Plasterers' Union claims a sweeping victory.

Five of the thirty men out of work today are reported to have work at Worcester, at the Boston wage rate, when they will go to-morrow, with free transportation furnished by their employers to and from the job each day. Three others departed to-day for work to start on Commonwealth avenue, in Cambridge, and the officers of the union state that they have received telegrams from New York, Jersey City, Brooklyn and Albany calling for 200 additional men at a higher wage than the $5.20 rate.

The Master Plasterers' Association, however, refuse to concede a victory to the strikers, and has called for a mass meeting of builders for a "radical readjustment of the relations of employers in the building trades toward trade unions."

This meeting is to be held into this afternoon.

NEW AEROPLANE RECORD IN FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 2.—A new French aeroplane record was established at Chalons by Roger Sommer in a Farman biplane. He flew for 1 hour 50½ minutes at an average height of eighty feet. It is estimated that he travelled a distance of seventy miles. This considerably exceeds in duration the record flight made by Wilbur Wright at Le Mans, France, on September 21, 1908. Without a passenger he remained in the air 1 hour 31 minutes 25 seconds.

700,000 Quarts of Milk Sterilized Every Day

The demand for Van Camp's now runs at the rate of a hundred million cans annually. Think how many have proved this the finest milk in America.

Some may claim that common milk is just as good as Holstein. They know they are wrong.

Some may say that milk partly evaporated is as economical as Van Camp's. A test will tell you it isn't.

Some offer condensed milk, which is nearly half sugar, because sugar costs less than the milk.

All of these factors are everywhere opposed to your interest and ours.

But, day by day, people are learning the difference. They are coming more and more to Van Camp's.

Whole, Rich Milk

Van Camp's gives to milk dishes a richness and flavor which you never can get from raw milk.

The reason is that milkman's milk separates—before and after you get it. The butter fat rises and the solids fall. The raw milk used for cooking, usually, is hardly more than a half-milk.

Van Camp's has all the solids, all the fats that belong to the richest milk. When you once compare it with raw milk in cooking, you will find the difference amazing.

Our Holstein Cows

We milk 25,000 cows daily, and buy none but the Holstein breed. These robust, contented cows possess tremendous vitality which is conveyed to their milk.

There is a vast difference between milk like this and milk from mongrel cows.

The fresh milk from the cow is placed in a vacuum. And a moderate heat, because of that vacuum, throws off the water in steam.

Thus we remove two-thirds of the water to reduce the bulk. The milk that results is as thick as thick cream.

That is all we do. Nothing whatever is added, and nothing but water subtracted.

A Germless Milk

We have no tubercular cows, and no diseased milkmen. For cows and men are frequently inspected.

Our dairies are sanitary in the extreme. Our evaporating plants are built without wood.

Every can of Van Camp's is sterilized after the can is sealed. So germ development is utterly out of the question.

So much of raw milk contains disease germs that every authority warns people against it. In Van Camp's, there are no germs at all.

The slight almond flavor, apparent when one drinks Van Camp's milk cold, is due to the heat applied in sterilization.

Its Immense Economy

You would think that such milk would cost more than the common. But the cost, on the basis of raw milk, is about six cents per quart.

A full pint of Van Camp's costs 10 cents by the can, and less if you buy by the case. That is enough to make three pints of rich milk, if you wish to put back all the water.

Van Camp's is cheaper than raw milk—cheaper than the poorest milkman's milk.

For the cost of raw milk is doubled by the cost of daily delivery.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. You open a can when you want it, and it keeps till you use it up. That means a considerable additional saving.

A case of Van Camp's lasts a month or more. Then you have rich milk or cream—little or much—ready whenever you want it.

Not Like Others

A great deal of milk sold in cans is condensed milk, of which 40 per cent is sugar.

Sugar was formerly used to preserve milk—before the days of sterilization. It is not needed now, so you waste what you pay for it.

Condensed milk, because of the sugar, is unfitted for cooking. It is unnatural, extravagant and outgrown.

There are also evaporated milks, unsweetened, which are very unlike Van Camp's.

Ours is Holstein milk, from cows of the finest breed. And the milk is tested until it is 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat.

Common milk, not so greatly reduced, may be said to be as good as Van Camp's. But a test will show that it isn't.

The superiority of Van Camp's is so generally known that people now use 100,000,000 cans annually.

The 16-oz. can of Van Camp's sells for 10 cents; the 6-oz. can for 5 cents. So you get one-third more for your money in buying the larger cans. Grocers give discounts on cases. The milk is produced at our dairies, located in six states.

HURLED FROM BALLOON ON TO RAVINE'S EDGE

NORTH ADAMS, Aug. 2.—After landing, with considerable difficulty, in the village of Monroe Bridge, N. Y., during which Fred La Franchise was knocked from the balloon rigging to the ground, the five aeronauts who ascended from here Saturday afternoon in the big balloon Massachusetts, have finally been heard from. They were reported "lost" for over twenty-four hours. Reporters and newspaper correspondents all over the northwestern part of Massachusetts were trying to locate the missing balloonists.

William Van Sloet, pilot of the aerial expedition, told today for the first time where the balloon went and what happened.

The party consisted, in addition to Pilot Van Sloet and Fred La Franchise of Bennington, Vt., of Engineer and Assistant Engineer W. H. Nichols and E. P. Bonghton of the Twin State Gas & Electric Company and H. E. Stone, a hardware salesman of Springfield.

Cross the State Line.

Except for Mr. Van Sloet, who is an experienced pilot, none of the men had been on a balloon ascension before.

The Massachusetts made one of the prettiest possible get-aways at Aero Park at 3:20 Saturday afternoon. Carried by a light wind, it moved easily to the southeast.

A change of wind took the party across the New York State line and over the village of Monroe Bridge. At 5:30, having traveled about twenty-six miles, the Pilot Van Sloet planned to descend. To clear an intervening stretch of woods he had the trinket bag thrown out. He had only two bags of sand left, so wished to hold on to those for emergency.

Clearing the first stretch of woods, Pilot Van Sloet told the others to put over the anchor and drag-rope. Someone not only put them over but unloosened them at the same time from the balloon, so that they fell disconnected from the balloon.

With four inexperienced men, no anchor or drag-rope and only two bags of sand, Pilot Van Sloet thought that the quickest they got to earth the better. So he valved enough to let the balloon approach the ground rapidly.

Thrown from Rigging.

To avoid the shock the men climbed from the basket into the rigging. When the basket hit the ground, Fred Franchise threw La Franchise from the rigging. He fell to the ground and rolled over and over to the edge of a frog pond, just missing a ducking. His hat was smashed.

Relieved of La Franchise's 335 pounds, the balloon shot up 8,000 feet in ten minutes and then began to descend rapidly. Van Sloet valved till they were within 100 feet of the ground again, then pulled the rip cord. The balloon parachuted and a comparatively easy landing was made. They came down the second time within 100 yards of where the first landing was attempted. La Franchise was waiting for them.

The balloonists put up for the night in a farmhouse and neglected to telephone to North Adams. They got out of Monroe Bridge in leisurely manner yesterday afternoon while the newspapermen were calling up all the autofreckway places they could think of in an effort to locate them.

TWO MONTHS FOR ATTACK ON OFFICER

Fred Renehan was fined $5 for drunkenness in the Roxbury Court by Judge Williams today and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction for assault about midnight on Saturday on Special Officer Francis A. Higgins, on duty at the Dudley street terminal. Renehan appealed on both counts. It is said that he attacked the officer, who is sixty-eight years old, when the latter asked him not to cause a disturbance and to take a car.

FUNERAL TO-DAY OF LOWELL'S GRANDSON

The funeral of Joseph Burnett, grandson of James Russell Lowell, took place today at the chapel of Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge. The Rev. Ellis Bishop, an uncle, officiated, and the body was cremated. Mr. Burnett lived in Elmwood avenue, Cambridge, and died at his Summer home at Beverly Farms. The bearers were members of Mr. Burnett's class at Harvard in 1897—R. H. Stephenson, Jr., Augustus P. Parker, C. C. Rumrill, S. P. Bonnett, Jr., E. N. Fenno, Jr., and Robert Hunt, Jr.

KILLED SLEEPING ON RAIL.

Ernesto Moschino, who was struck by an engine on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad as he lay asleep on the bridge between Boston and Winthrop, died at the East Boston Relief Hospital today. He was forty-four years of age and lived at No. 9 Boardman street, East Boston.

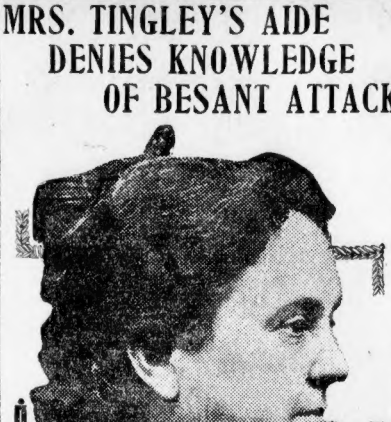
MRS. TINGLEY'S AIDE DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF BESANT ATTACK



MRS. KATHERINE TINGLEY

"Purple Mother" of Theosophy, now at Newburyport.

Mrs. Katherine Tingley's secretary denied, over the long-distance telephone between Boston and Newburyport to-day, any knowledge of circulars alleged to be sent out by Mrs. Tingley's faction of the Theosophists and attacking Mrs. Annie Besant, who has just arrived in New York from London with a message to the New World.

The circulars purporting to come from the Tingley faction were shown to Mrs. Besant's secretary at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, last night. The secretary said:

"Mrs. Besant does not propose to pay any attention to these attacks. Personally I have no fear that any opinion the various attacks that are reported are a part of a conspiracy will have any effect so far as Mrs. Besant is concerned, she will not have any willing to do with it. She is known all over the world, as are her teachings and her books. She stands upon her own record and does not propose to have any controversy on this subject."

Speaks for Mrs. Tingley.

In answer to a long-distance call put in by the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day for Mrs. Tingley at Newburyport, a woman came to the telephone and said: "This is Mrs. Tingley."

The speaker was told about the New York report about the circulars and about the answer made by Mrs. Besant's secretary, hinting that some Blackmail scheme was at foot.

"I shall have to ask Mrs. Tingley about this first," said the speaker.

"I thought you said you were Mrs. Tingley," replied the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"Well," was the reply, "I said it was Mrs. Tingley talking as we find that necessary to hold people's attention on the telephone. I am Mrs. Tingley's secretary."

"Can you get a statement from Mrs. Tingley regarding this assertion of Mrs. Besant's secretary?"

"Not now. Mrs. Tingley has not seen the circulars of which you speak."

"Did Mrs. Tingley send out these circulars?"

"I do not know. I have not seen them."

"Did Mrs. Tingley send out any circulars attacking Mrs. Besant?"

"Not that I know. If Mrs. Tingley has any reply to make later I will let you know."

"Would Mrs. Tingley see our correspondent if he called at the house?"

"No, positively not. She is too busy."

Plan to Block Crusade.

Dispatches to-day from New York say that the followers of Mrs. Tingley, "The Purple Mother," are preparing to block Mrs. Besant's crusade in this country.

These two branches of the cult founded by Mme. Blavatsky are as bitter toward each other as the two factions of the Christian Scientists. Mrs. Tingley numbers former Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage and other distinguished public men among her supporters, and her influence is said to be sufficient to split the whole body of American Theosophists who open during Mrs. Besant's present tour.

The Tingleyites caused to be distributed among the Theosophists two circulars calculated to stir up a row at once. One of the pamphlets is signed by Joseph H. Fussell of Point Loma. In it the Besant preachings are called counterfeit theosophy, and all the adherents of the Englishwoman are invited to get out from under her leadership and join Mrs. Tingley.

Mrs. Besant is attacked for having condemned the judge of C. W. Leadbeater of London, a former Church of England minister, who resigned from the British Section of the Theosophical Society some time ago. The circular calls the Leadbeater teachings very hard names, and appeals to the American people to support Mrs. Tingley when Leadbeater is arrested of having put into the heads of the lads who were under his instruction base matters.

"Menace to Society."

Such teachings, the Tingleyites say, rob young American men of their manhood and tend to sap the race of its vigor and destroy the foundations of society in civilized countries.

The words "loathsome beast" appear in Fussell's circular, which contains an "appeal to Mrs. Besant." She must put her self together, the appeal says, and must publicly disown Leadbeater or be classed as a "spurious religious teacher, preying upon the intelligent slavery of unreasoning and hypnotized disciples."

NEW SOCIETY CLUB TO ADMIT 600 MEMBERS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The absorbing topic among the fashionables just now is the proposed woman's club for Boston—one who shall be asked to join and the various details which must be planned early. As the membership is limited to 600 and the club is to be conducted only of the most aristocratic of Boston society women, there is no end of clamoring for admission.

The club is to be on a par with the Somerset Club. So far the officers have not been chosen, but as the forty original promoters include our most representative women, it doesn't take a prophet to foretell that it will be a dazzling success.

Among our well-known women actively interested are Mrs. Elsie J. Draper, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, Mrs. Rudolph Agassiz, Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, Miss Mary S. Ames, Mrs. Francis L. Amory, Miss Mary Cabot Amory, Mrs. William Appleton, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee, Mrs. Stephen V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., Mrs. Philip Dexter, Miss Marion Fenno, Miss Dorothy Forbes, Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, Miss Amy Lowell, Mrs. John Lowell, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, Mrs. John Parkinson, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Mrs. Charles H. Perkins, Mrs. William Putnam, Mrs. Frederick L. W. Richardson, Mrs. Robert S. Russell, Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Chas E. Sears, Mrs. Richard D. Sears, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, Mrs. James J. Storrow, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Miss Susan Thayer, Mrs. Paul Thorndike, Mrs. George Tyson, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. Barret Wendell and Mrs. Roger Wolcott.

The site for a building will be decided upon shortly. There will be restaurants for members and strangers, a large assembly hall for receptions and meetings, a reading room, a tea room, bedrooms, Turkish baths, squash courts and other athletic advantages.

Among those who have entertained recently in Bar Harbor is Mrs. Sidney W. Keith, who gave an elaborate dinner at the Swimming Club on-Saturday evening before the hop. The favors were American Beauty roses, and the floral decorations were of sweet peas. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rackle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Drayton, Mrs. Drayton, Mrs. Adams, Miss Julia Berwind, Miss Anne Thompson, Mrs. Frank T. Howard, Miss Linzee, Miss Ellen Hendrie, Reginald de Koven, Charles Fry, William Boardman and Timothee Adamowski.

Count Moltke is expected to return from Denmark at an early date. He will be the Countess Moltke, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, at Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis White were entertained Saturday evening at the Casino in Narragansett Pier by Captain and Mrs. Isaac F. Emerson. Mrs. Marguerite Mc Kim, who came over from Newport, was also a guest of the Emersons.

Among the guests at the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. George Winthrop Fox soon at Sunnyridge, Lenox, were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gilbert, Mrs. Robert Winthrop, and the Rev. Arthur J. Gammack. H. Taylor of Boston is abroad, stopping at the Savoy in London. He will go to the continent this week, and expects to return to America sometime in October.

Mrs. Charles A. Munn is in Paris at the Hotel de Crillon.

Rehearsals are under way for the presentation of "The Servant in the House" at Newport, on the evening of August 21. The play is to be given for the benefit of the Newport Hospital and promises to be one of the most largely attended social functions of the season. A few in the cast of characters includes F. G. Castleman of the Navy, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney James Catford, Arthur Robeson, Miss Lillian Mahar and Professor Thomas Crosby of Brown University.

One of the recent musical events of note at Bar Harbor was the Heinrich recital at Brookend, the residence of Mrs. Robert Abbe. An interesting feature was Courtlandt Palmer's playing of a number of his own songs during the programme. Some of the music lovers present were Mrs. Arthur C. Train, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lownsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald de Koven, M. and Mrs. Louden, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pratt, General and Mrs. Thomas H. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kane, Mrs. John J. Wysong, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hoyt, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Judge George C. Ingraham, the Misses Morris, Mrs. Edward La Montagne, Frank Harrison, J. Pierpont Edwards and Fenton Beale.

Miss Mabel Choate, Miss Grace Brownell, Miss Margaret French, Miss Eleanor Codman, Frank Crowninshield, Jacob Wendell and Edward Crowninshield were among the participants in the Greek pantomime performance which was given Saturday evening at the Hotchkiss Casino. A similar performance is to be given at Narragansett Pier on the evening of August 13.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Wharton Swan (Susan Sedgwick), who left Stockbridge recently for a trip abroad, will be guests in Paris of Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge and the Misses Whitridge, who are Mrs. Swan's cousins.

Mrs. M. J. Whitehead of Boston is the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall at their shore bungalow at Pine Point, Me.

Miss Rosalind Hurtubis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hurtubis, Jr., who united last week on the Cymric for a month's cruise, will be given a reception by her parents on Wednesday with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf Boston people at Cape Cod are President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Judge Lathrop and his wife, Manager H. D. Dupree of Keith's Theatre, and W. W. Jenney and family at Mosquito, in the Cotuit colony. John and James Dow and the Misses Barbara and Margaret Dow of Cambridge are at their summer home in Sandwich. Professor Searles and Mr. and Mrs. William Reed of Cambridge are also there; Mrs. E. C. Lockwood and Miss Melissa Hamlin of Concord are at Centreville.

Monument Beach has quite a Summer colony from Brockton. Mayor John S. Keith and family are there, together with A. A. Delano, R. C. Caldwell, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Courtenay, Austin Sumner and Colin Barrett.

The following are at Saquenoe Beach: H. N. Lothrop and George W. Coleman of Boston, the Rev. Dr. Clark G. Donovan of Everett and Mrs. C. C. Hinkham of Taunton.

M'TAVISH CASE UP TO-MORROW

District Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex County, who is on a vacation at Provincetown, will come to Cambridge District Court to-morrow morning to handle the Government's case at the continued hearing of Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, charged with the murder of Stewart McTavish in the Hotel Florence, East Cambridge.

Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley of the Cambridge police said to-day:

"I should not be surprised if the Government put on only one or two more witnesses and then rest its case. Mrs. Richmond will be put on the stand in her own behalf, and I expect that the case will be finished by Wednesday night."

HATTIE FORSYTHE, WHO DECLINES TO WED YOUNG DREXEL

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Hattie Forsythe of "Moulin Rouge" comic opera fame, who arrived in London by the Amerika, settled once for all a question which has much exercised the Quaker City, as to whether she intended to marry Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Miss Forsythe declared that, while she considered herself as good as Mr. Drexel, she as not mistaken that the Drexels shared her views. Indeed, she said, she had an indistinct impression that if she entered their family circle they might try to make it unpleasant for her. The actress declared that young Mr. Drexel indicted on her marrying him last Winter, and various arguments were resorted to dissuade him —all in vain. Finally she told him his family would cut him off with a shilling.

"That's all right," said Tony, Jr., according to Miss Forsythe, "with my name and the prestige of the family you and I could make a living on the stage."

"Excuse me," replied Miss Forsythe, according to herself, "when I take a husband it will be one who can support me without any assistance from poor little me."

ELKS HOME, SAY BOSTON LEADS ALL

Though praising warmly the hospitality they received in the West and frankly admiring the beauties and advantages of many Western cities, the members of Boston Lodge of Elks No. 10, who have just returned from the Grand Lodge meeting at Los Angeles, are to-day more confirmed than ever that Boston is the city of them all. Past Exalted Ruler Lawrence H. Sullivan, official delegate from Boston Lodge to the Grand Lodge, said to-day:

"We had a delightful trip. We went 6,000 miles and all arrived home only twenty minutes behind our schedule time. We found that in practically every city we had many splendid cities. But our own Boston is in a class by itself. Looking back on the cities we visited I still think Boston is the finest in the country. But the other cities have their fine points, too.

"Pictures in city buildings and grounds. Los Angeles is a fast-growing city and has a splendid climate.

"Frisco is rising splendidly from the ruins of its big fire. In every direction in Frisco you see fine, new blocks but whole streets of modern and massive structures.

"Portland, Oregon, is a city of million-dollar residences. The finest climate on earth. It is busily called the 'City of Roses of Perpetual Bloom.' Tacoma is moving rather slowly. Seattle is a great city and is a business, too. It has inland harbor wharfage for a city of 1,000,000 population. Vancouver, B. C., is a thriving city, but the New York, Chicago and Seattle will be the three biggest cities in the land.

"But give me Boston for them all."

PIERCE WEDS YANKEE WIDOW

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Henry Clay Pierce of St. Louis was married to-day at George's Church, Hanover square, to Virginia Prickett Burrowes, daughter of Major William Russell Prickett of Edwardsville, Ill. The bride's former husband died four years ago. Every effort was made to keep the hour of the ceremony secret, and beyond the church officials only four persons witnessed the wedding.

A special license was secured at Canterbury. The bride was attended by her daughter, Virginia Burrowes, and given away by H. R. Conferson. Baron Gius de Morpurgo supported the bridegroom. The other members of the wedding party were Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell, a relative of Mr. Pierce.

St. George's Church, among the most fashionable in London, was prettily decorated with flowers. The bride had a beautiful bouquet of orchids. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. J. Anderson. After a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left for Continent. An extended honeymoon trip through southern France is to follow.

BLIND KNIGHT AND LADY HERE

Sir Francis Joseph Campbell, the blind philanthropist, whose upon whom knighthood was recently conferred by King Edward, will reach Boston to-day from England. He is accompanied by his wife, and their object is to visit the old Perkins Institute, stead at South Acton. Lady Campbell is the eldest descendant of Colonel Francis Faulkner, one of the Minute Men of Lexington and Bunker Hill fame. Sir Francis was resident principal of the Perkins Institute for the Blind in South Boston for eleven years and later the creator of the Royal Normal College and the Academy of Music for the Blind in London.

LID IS OFF ON BETTING AT SARATOGA

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The lid is off the opening of racing season of one month here this afternoon. The Agnew-Hart anti-betting law is to receive its great test.

The Saratoga Racing Association has decided that the "field" will be opened to the general public. This means that betting will go on openly.

Race goers by the thousand flocked here on the early train. The Saratoga handicap was the great drawing card of the day.

Not only race track betting, but other forms of gambling will continue uninterrupted through the month, according to the present aspect of things. Scores of well known roulette and faro men were gathered about the hotel lobbies, and they made no secret of the fact that they are here for action.

The "regulars" learned that the Considine interests, which formerly owned the Metropole Hotel at Forty-Second street and Broadway, in New York, have leased a hotel here, which will be the headquarters of the big bettors and the monied sports.

There was a keen crusade against gambling here last year, but the feeling has apparently died out to a large extent. Before that time the winning or losing of $50,000 in a single night by an individual player was looked upon as so common as to arouse no comment.

The Candell establishment was famous for its stakes and luxurious interior. With the crusade by the people against the game and the coming of Governor Hughes into the arena, the rich gamblers sold out to wait for more propitious times.

It looked this morning as though horse racing and gambling on horse racing would be pretty much the same as it was before Governor Hughes had his anti-race track betting bill passed. Oral betting, which has been on the Long Island tracks for some time successfully, was seen to be impractical for the Saratoga course. On the Long Island tracks only the heavy bettors who know the bookmakers and were known by them, indulged in the sport. Up here where the admission fee is only a dollar and thousands see the races, the unknown to the bookmakers the "real" betting scheme is manifestly impossible. That is why the tip was passed around to-day that betting of the old-time kind would be indulged in openly.

MEXICO QUAKE VICTIMS DYING OF STARVATION

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2.—Fully 6,000 persons are to-day suffering from exposure and hunger along the southern coast of Mexico between Cuxaco and Acapulco. Many of them are slowly dying of starvation.

Frenzied appeals for aid have been made from Guerrero. The sufferers are lacking clothing, shelter and food and are living in the fields. At both Acapulco and Chilpancingo, where shocks late Saturday finished the work of destruction, the suffering is intense. Crumbling walls of dangerous places were blown down by the gale, and many persons have tried to construct rude shelter from the mass of debris. Rain, coming by the heels of the tropical storms of wind and rain, adding to the discomfort.

Seventy-three shocks have been felt since Friday. President Diaz has been asked from various Southern points to give immediate aid. Medicines are needed as struct rude shelter from the mass of debris. Rain, coming by the heels of the tropical storms of wind and rain, adding to the discomfort.

Seventy-three shocks have been felt since Friday. President Diaz has been asked from various Southern points to give immediate aid. Medicines are needed as well. Word has been sent which may ravage the countryside causing loss as great as the quake. Funds are being raised and tents and provisions being collected here for shipment. Many tourists are leaving for the United States bearing further shocks in this city.

3 SUBMARINES IN SPEED TEST

PROVINCETOWN, Aug. 2.—Three new submarine boats, the Viper, Narwhal and Moccasin, were given their first official contests to-day, and the Narwhal, which is said to be the speediest and best craft of the kind in the world, made thirteen knots on the surface. The trials before the government board of survey will continue for two weeks, ten hours a day. The date on which the boats with their full complement and crew will go down for twenty-four hours is not announced.

Convicted on evidence procured by special men sent out by Admiral Schroeder, Manuel P. Lopez was to-day fined $100 and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction for the illegal sale of liquor. On Saturdays and Sundays Lopez is said to do 3,000 sailors ashore from the fleet, and has recently managed to procure liquor.

GOLDEN GRACES AT WONDERLAND

To-day the Sunday American Outing Club, as guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN, will visit the Golden Graces who have made a hit at Wonderland Park. The ticket for the Golden Graces is absolutely free, as is a ticket of admission to Wonderland Park. The park attractions also includes the splendid Cinderella Show. The tickets are also good to-morrow.

The best thing about Golden Graces contest is not the posse are presented every week adapted from classic art with subjects selected for their beauty of grace and figure. Any one posing at Wonderland is very popular and is making money, the crowds are so large each week and the park owners are going home satisfied with every cent invested in it. Wonderland's "1910" season opens to-day. This is a result of a carefully planned plan of beginning and gradual building up of the attractions to meet the test of popular approval.

Besides the twenty cents' worth of admission to free amusements given by the SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets there were published yesterday twelve half-fare coupons to the leading rides and shows of the park, giving ten cents' worth in each instance for a ticket and five cents' worth the rounds of the park to-day and to-morrow.

'SICK? NO SIR!' SAYS HOWELLS

William Dean Howells, the veteran author, in a long-distance telephone talk with the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day from his Summer home in Eliot, Me., denied a report that he is in very poor health and has been under a doctor's care. Mr. Howells answered the telephone in person.

"A news dispatch from New York says that you are very ill," Mr. Howells was told.

"What's that," he queried. "Sick? No sir! I wish you would say that I am very well. My daughter Mildred and myself are going to Carlsbad."

"Are you going to take the cure?"

"Cure? No, I am going for pleasure, that's all."

"When are you going?"

"We call for New York on Wednesday. Good-by."

Mrs. Howells will stay at the Summer home in Maine, where she will have as her guest and companion Miss Mary Almond, her sister.

SEEK MISSING GIRL FOR DYING MOTHER

Lying at the point of death from a shock brought on by worry, Mrs. F. W. Kinson of Cornish Flat, N. H., is asking continually for her daughter Annie, a girl twenty-two, whom she has not seen for two years. The girl's father, who is a guide in Cornish's Park, left his home in Boston for trying to find some trace of his missing daughter. The girl came to Boston about six years ago, where she worked as a domestic. She made occasional visits home, in August, 1907, she left it for the last time, though she wrote at intervals until March, 1908, when her last letter was received. She was then working at No. 27 Hall avenue, Somerville. When no letters arrived her father came to Boston to look for her. He traced her from Somerville to Chelsea, and from there to Heath street, Winter Hill. Here her trail was lost. He asks that if any one can give him tidings of his daughter to communicate with him at Room 2, No. 216 Washington street, this city.

'LINCOLN' CENT IS OUT TO-DAY

The Philadelphia mint issues to-day the new "Lincoln" pennies, which the Treasury Department has designed to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the late President's birth.

The head of Lincoln, which appears on the coin has been designed from a photograph which was owned by the late Charles Eliot Norton. The face is related and smiling, the young artist having sought to reproduce particularly Lincoln's expression when talking to children.

This artist is Victor D. Brenner, a twenty-seven-year-old Russian, who came to this country as a boy, sold matches in the street and studied art at night at Cooper Union, New York. He saved up enough money to study sculpture in Paris, and on his return opened a studio.

He had always been a great admirer of Lincoln's anti-slavery policy, and when he heard that the Government was finding that the Indian head on the cent was easily counterfeited and that a Lincoln head was being talked of for some coin he began seeking a suitable photograph of Lincoln, and after obtaining Dr. Norton's sent a design to Washington, which was accepted.

PAYNE MAY FOLLOW DEPEW IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Serene P. Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House and author of the new tariff act, may succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the United States Senate if a rumor that is abroad in congressional circles

Payne smiles and says nothing. And it is difficult otherwise to trace the rumor to its source.

It is being pointed out here that Payne's long and rare description of being the first Ways and Means chairman in a generation, may have been made in behalf of a tariff bill through conference bearing any resemblance to its original shape.

WILL VISIT THE POPE

Father Joseph S. Tesbeth, who has been in this country doing missionary work for two years, has been granted permission by Archbishop O'Connell to visit Syria, the place of his nativity. While there Father Tesbeth will journey to Rome, where he will visit the Pope and receive the papal blessing.

900 ARTILLERY MEN PUNISHED IN WAR GAME

For demanding double pay for doing military duty during the general war game to be held in Massachusetts from August 16 to 24 the Coast Artillery Corps of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia has been punished by being ordered to do more infantry work instead of to the fort defences for which they had ardently drilled.

This sharp penalty has been imposed on the 900 members of the Coast Artillery because they held out for pay from the State as well as pay from the Government during the war game, even though they were willing to assign their State pay to their companies, to go to the company treasurers.

This punishment order to infantry duty was issued by Governor Draper and Adjutant-General Brigham, following the decision of the Artillery Corps to stick to the demand for the double pay envelope.

Agreement Was Made.

Here's what Adjutant General Brigham, commanding officer of the State's forces, had to say over the long-distance telephone from his Hudson home in regard to the affair:

"Before the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia made its plans for the war game next years, a meeting was held of the various commands, at which it was decided by vote that no double pay would be allowed during the war game. The Coast Artillery Corps was represented at the meeting and no objection was raised at that time.

"Later the question came up again. The Coast Artillery Corps didn't want to waive their rights. Ten days ago they were ordered to a four days' duty during the manoeuvres as infantrymen."

"Is this action a punishment for the Coast Artillery Corps?" interrogated the reporter over the telephone.

"It can be taken both ways," replied Adjutant-General Brigham.

Sixteen thousand sailors and militia men from many of the Eastern coast States will take active part in the great sham game that will be played for seven days on Massachusetts shores.

If the invading forces are successful in their attempt, they may try to effect a landing and a capture of Boston. There have been reports that the invaders will try to theoretically burn Boston, capture Beverly, the Summer capital and theoretically make President Taft a prisoner of war.

Nations Are Interested.

The forthcoming manoeuvres will be watched with the keenest eyes of foreign observers, is it is believed that the war game will demonstrate the efficiency of the volunteer forces of the United States Army, upon whose shoulders would devolve a great part of the defence of the country in case it should be engaged in war with some powerful foreign power.

Already representatives of the European and Asiatic countries have arrived on the scene of the contest and have gone over the ground. The army officials have not objected to this as yet, but stringent orders have been issued by Gen. Wm. Dorward, men prohibiting foreign emissaries from entering the camps and witnesses during the manoeuvres.

But $500,000 has been appropriated for the manoeuvres and it has been found necessary by the commanding officers to skimp in every possible way.

Major-General Leonard Wood, the highest ranking officer in the United States Army, will be the commanding officer during the war game, and it is believed that the fighting will be carried out just as though the country had changed hands.

Taught to Fly Aeroplanes.

Aeronautics, wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony are to play an important part in the war game. The signal corps of the army will give instruction in the use of aeroplanes and balloons for scouting purposes and in the manipulation of the wireless systems of communication. Theoretical instruction will be given in the use of the Wright aeroplanes, as the signal corps officers who are to be pupils of Wilbur Wright this week.

CHICAGO CANDIDACY DENIED BY BROOKS

Superintendent Stratton D. Brooks returned to Boston Saturday, after a trip to the Pacific coast, and learned for the first time that his name had been used in connection with the superintendency of the Chicago public schools. Mr. Brooks states that he has never been a candidate for the position of superintendent of the Chicago schools, and that he has never interviewed or corresponded with any member of the Chicago Board of Education relative to the position. Furthermore, he announced last February, when the Chicago position became vacant, that he would not take it, and he has not since authorized anybody to use his name in connection with the place.

BOYS STOW AWAY TO HUNT INDIANS

Two boys from the suburbs of Liverpool, John Ellis and George Rankin, were among the stowaways which the Warren liner Sachem brought into Boston to-day. They told Captain Murdoch that they were only out to Texas to become cowboys and kill Indians. They were just to "paint it to Texas, they said, in a matter of a few hours, as they believed. Instead, they are detained at Long wharf by the Immigration officials.

TWO WOMEN FINED FOR SHOPLIFTING

Two women were fined for shoplifting by Judge Williams in the Roxbury Court to-day. The both paid. Mrs. Ida Cummings, who said she lived at No. 10 Worthington street, had a child about two years old in court with her. She was fined $30. Mary Maradian, who gave her address as No. 19 Galena street, was fined $15. The thefts were committed in Roxbury department stores. Policeman Jordan arrested both women.

FINANCIER QUITS BECAUSE OF CONSCIENCE

By BOERSIANER.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—If the motive for an apparently unimportant resignation in Chicago last week should become general the present system of finance might be endangered. The Illinois Brick Company is a purely local organization. Its former president, C. D. P. Howell, is hardly known even in the Salle street.

But the world at large should know something of this man who resigned from the little company, capital stock, $4,000,000. When, last Tuesday, he told the board of directors that he could no longer remain in the service of the organization, he took a step which vitally concerns everybody who has to do with economics.

The Illinois Brick Company was organized four years ago. It is made up of some twenty old plants, scattered about the outskirts of Chicago. In the first years a Mr. Pressing was the chief officer. His was an aggressively money-making policy. The price schedule was stiff and consumers had no recourse, for the company had a monopoly of the trade.

Bought Outside Brick.

In time some of the big builders found they could buy brick in other cities and ship it to Chicago at prices under those of the Illinois organization. That forced a reduction to a point where competition from the outside became unprofitable.

Later, internal dissensions occurred. One of the directors started a rival plant. The example was followed at brief intervals by half a dozen brickmakers. When rivalry had become forbidden the usual thing took place; there was an "association of interests" as to prices. The monopoly charges were restored.

But here the consumer objected. He applied to the courts for relief, protesting that the Illinois Brick Company and its supposed rivals had a hard and fast agreement as to prices, a compact which was a flagrant violation of the statutes. The courts decided for the complainant, so that the arrangement between the brick manufacturers was dissolved. Following this decision, Pressing was succeeded by Howell.

Under the latter's management the Illinois Brick Company was conducted in a law-fearing manner, which did not prevent is from making some money. The profits, however, were not sufficient to suit some one on the board of directors, one with an ingeniously legal turn.

Finds Way to Beat Law.

This gentleman thought it would not be a bad idea to make some bricks with a patented mucilage. The public supposed—it was so led to suppose—that the company had discovered a labor-saving apparatus, so paid little attention to the announcement until it heard that C. D. P. Howells had suddenly resigned. His resignation had ensued upon the directors' adoption of the patent scheme. The consumers' confusion increased when told that the "independent" plants had "secured the right" to use the same patent.

Then it dawned upon the outsider that the "patent" was merely a device to evade the Illinois law to which the brick companies are subject. Articles manufactured by a patented machine are exempt from State statutes; as a consequence there would be a "restitution" of the unlawfully scale of prices. But while the public was surprised by the ruse, "practical" finance will be shocked to hear of the cause of President Howells' retirement: he could not conscientiously countenance the subterfuge indorsed by the board of directors. He believed it to be wrong. His scruples are moral and religious.

Howells is of Welsh descent, of the stock from which William D. Howells sprang, and there is in him the moral sensibility, the keen conscience discernible in that author's works. Obviously, too, he has in some course of conviction characteristic of the novelist.

But what is to become of corporations if such sensitive souls are elected to the presidency? Really, directors cannot be too careful in selecting a president. Howells has set a demoralizing precedent.

GEORGIA BARS OUT TRADING STAMPS

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 2.—Trading stamps are now contraband in Georgia. Governor Brown has signed the bill which prohibits the use of little stickers for barter or trade inducements. The bill was introduced at the request of the retail merchants of the State, who discovered that a New York mail order house was reaping a harvest by using the stamps.

JULY REALTY SALES SHOW AN ADVANCE

The number of realty transfers for July this year shows a slight increase over the record for the corresponding months in 1908 and 1907. There is a similar gain in the number and amounts of mortgages. The record prepared by the Real Estate Exchange shows these figures:

	1909.	1908.	1907.
Number of transfers	1,214	1,091	1,800
Number of mortgages	964	816	758
Amount of mortgages	$2,929,725	$2,040,521	$4,146,934

The past week compares favorably with the corresponding weeks in the last two years. The Real Estate Exchange's records show the following:

	1909.	1908.	1907.
Number of transfers	251	153	317
Number of mortgages	178	181	198
Amount of mortgages	$887,241	$984,834	$930,282

Daily transfers for the week were:

July 22	51	25	$78,424

HARRIMAN QUITS RESORT; IS CURED

VIENNA, Aug. 2.—Professor Strumpell, who is acting as medical advisor to E. H. Harriman, had a conference to-day with his patient.

Professor Strumpell declares that Harriman's condition is most satisfactory.

Harriman leaves Bad-Gastein for Salzburg to-day, going later to Munich.

Professor Hoenbrich, who also examined Mr. Harriman, says: "Mr. Harriman's ailment was of many years' duration. It is a chronic disease, and in the worst cases only leads to a certain stiffness of limbs and movements of the body. The combination of the waters has an agreeable effect on his nervous system. He will be able to attend to business as before."

INFANT'S DEATH REMAINS MYSTERY

A finding of death by poison administered by a person unknown was rendered by the jury to-day by Judge Pickman of Lowell, who held an inquest on the death of the infant son of Mrs. Bridget Edward Murray of Brookings street, Lowell. The child had been left by Mrs. Murray in charge of another woman while the mother went to police court as a witness. When Mrs. Murray returned the baby was ill. A few hours later it died. Professor Whitney of Harvard Medical School analyzed the contents of the stomach and reported traces of chlorine and mercury in combination.

BOARD MEETS TO TALK CITY RECORD

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen has been called for Wednesday at 2 p. m. to take action on the publication of the City Record. At the last meeting of the board the price was fixed at five cents a copy and $3,000 appropriated. When the order reached the Common Council a flaw was discovered in it, so that a new order will have to be passed.

INCOME TAX IS FAVORED BY BOSTON C. L. U.

The 80,000 organized wage workers of Greater Boston, through their accredited representatives, to-day are on record as favoring an income and an inheritance tax, the following resolution being adopted at the meeting of the Boston Central Labor Union, in Wells Memorial Hall:

"Resolved by the representatives of organized labor in meeting assembled

"Whereas it is fitting that those best able to bear the burden of taxation should bear it; be it therefore

"Resolved, that we favor an income and inheritance tax."

Frank H. McCarthy, for the Foster Fund Committee, submitted a detailed report of the monies collected and disbursed on behalf of the dead labor leader, the expense of defending which was borne by the State Branch, A. F. of L., the Boston Central Labor Union and Typographical Union No. 13, they paying for postage, typewriting, etc.

The total sum collected was $3,537.47, the State Branch committee contributing $1,863.21, and Typographical Union No. 13 $1,744.47. Out of this $938.75 was paid for Mr. Foster's maintenance at the Mc Lean Hospital, $232 for his funeral expenses, and $2,336.72 given to Mrs. Foster.

The question of a Labor Day celebration, and what form it should take if any were held, was referred to the following committee: J. E. Potts, T. H. McCarthy, D. D. Driscoll, E. F. Ward and P. J. Shehan. A hat collection for the striking hatters realized $12.

$1,000 BLAZE IN CAMBRIDGE STORE

The building at No. 28 Valentine street, Cambridgeport, occupied by Joseph Avery as a dry goods store, was burned to-day at a loss of $1,000, mostly on the stock. The building is a story and a half wooden affair owned by Charles Monte.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 2.—President Taft's remarkable victory on the tariff bill has run away the mark in Wall Street and has disclosed several high financiers lunging heartily. These gentlemen have been made to appear as wanting protection on iron ore and lumber. It now develops that they were really making this demand out of sympathy for the little fellow, exactly as they said they were doing. The Steel Trust, which certain Congressmen thought they were aiming at, now appears to be owner of vast quantities of iron ore in Canada.

The reduction of duty on iron ore helps the Trust more than it does the independent companies, for the Canadian ore is of higher grade than that in the United States, and the Trust has the best of it. The lumber multi-millionaires own almost as much lumber in Canada as they do in the United States, and they are delighted to get an opportunity to cut their Canadian timber rather than that at home. Canadians will, of course, come to the speaker by imposing an export duty on iron ore and lumber after a reasonable period, so that the Trusts are not hurt after all.

A notably strong feature among the rail road list is Canadian Pacific, which has the benefit of excellent crop prospects, while it is also said that the receipts from land sales are so large as to make it probable that before very long the company will find it possible to increase the 1 per cent. dividend, which it now pays, from that kind of revenue.

As Canada has been used as a club to obtain a reduced duty on iron ore and lumber, the public has awakened to the fact that Canadian Railroads are also serving useful purpose in keeping down freight rates in the United States. It is solely because of the existence of the Canadian Pacific that freight rates were not advanced last year more than they were. The American roads had land subsidies equal to those of the Canadian companies, but they were squandered.

The Canadian roads still hold their most valuable lands and are selling only to per sons who will help develop the country. As a result, they cannot help growing in power and influence. They can furnish cheap transportation, and this fact will enable business men of the United States to demand equal terms from their own railroads. Canada is an extremely useful neighbor for that reason alone.

There are in Canada 250,000,000 acres of virgin wheat land, every acre of which can produce from twenty to fifty bushels of wheat on a single harvest. The Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific are in a fierce competitive struggle for domination of these great wheat fields. British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan are the last frontiers and any opportunity has established headquarters there.

"While the American panic of two years ago was a pretty hard blow to British confidence, the rapid recovery in stock market speed, after the general bust had got itself, has furnished a striking object lesson of the resiliency of American credit in this country, and investment holdings of American stocks and bonds are as large as they have ever been.

"Mr. Hill has always been a large and important following who never sell, and of late years the interest in Mr. Harriman's properties is quite as large, if not larger. The extraordinary rise in Steel common has drawn sharp attention to the powerful earning power and increased capacity of the plant corporation."

PENNSYLVANIA STOCK LEADER

BY T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Pennsylvania was the leader of the stock market to-day. It opened at 140, and advanced to 141, the highest price at which it has sold since the panic. Strength of this issue caused a sympathetic rise in Reading of one point to 162, but had no effect on the market.

After the first few minutes of trading there was profit-taking that shaded prices a fraction, but the leaders held firm throughout the first hour.

On the New York curb market stocks of the first class were all strong and active.

LOCAL STOCK TRADING GOOD

STATE STREET, Aug. 2.—Stock market prices were firm and the volume of trading of good proportions in the local market this forenoon. There were some realizing sales due to the strength of copper shares last week, but they had no material effect and the tone of the whole market remained strong.

Shoe Machinery stock was given a list this forenoon from 62½ to 63¼. Steel was firm at 74 and factionally better and American Telephone was firm at around Saturday's closing prices. Lake Copper yielded slightly to 26⅛. This company's report for the year ending May 31 shows cash on hand of $3,791, but the company has received $50,412 for the sale of 2,000 shares of treasury stock since that time.

Amalgamated showed a firm tone up to 85, but trading was light. North Butte touched 53¾. Superior 52⅝ and U. S. Smelting 54¼. Zinc was also a firm feature at 6¾.

Curb trading was active in spots, but firm all around. Bay State Gas had a five-cent rise for the year ending May 31 and at 5½ on dividend prospects. Total sales on the curb were 1,046,437 shares for July. In the better grade of stocks Rhode Island Coal led in point of activity with 92,351 shares.

Breed, Kelvin and Rollins determine to bankrupt the "trusts." On one side is arrayed Breed's millions, and on the other the Packing Interests, the Leather Trust—in fact, all the business octopuses of the day.

It's a wonderful fight, involving the control of the railroads and their rates, politicians and their laws, and even the United States Senate. In fact, it is one of those brilliant stories that fairly whirl one from page to page.

DOVES WIN FINAL GAME IN ST. LOUIS; TACKLE CUBS NEXT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

PRES. PULLIAM'S FUNERAL TO-DAY; NO LEAGUE GAMES

NO GAME TODAY FOR RED SOX; TIGERS NEXT

Out of respect for the funeral of the late President Harry Pulliam of the National League there will be no baseball in any of the big league cities this afternoon. This was the order issued by President Ban Johnson of the American League following President Heydler of the National League on Saturday.

This will give the players and fans a day of rest, but it will make them do double work on Tuesday, for President John I. Taylor of the Red Sox has declared that there will be a double-header Monday's and Tuesday's games being played off.

Many thousands of bugs of this city were certainly sorry to hear that the game had been postponed, but as they mourn the loss of Harry Pulliam as much as any fans in the country, none are objecting to the respect paid him. The game scheduled for to-day was between the Tigers and Red Sox, and was the first of the series which promises to be the hottest seen in Boston this season. Thousands were eager for 3:15 o'clock to come around, so they could hike to the unshaded seats of the bleachers and yell themselves hoarse for the Red Sox to down that terrible aggregation of speed players from Tigerville, but they'll have to wait another day.

The Red Sox were handed out the roughest treatment of the calendar when they visited Detroit on their recent Western invasion. On this occasion Jennings' men outplayed and outfought the Bostonians, but "Never again," said Manager Lake, when he had gotten out of that city. "Never again" meaning that there would be no more stops for the Tiger team. With the aid of the yelling Boston fans, they should be able to make up for the games they recently dropped to the Jennings' men.

The Tigers and Red Sox players didn't figure on spending the day, and early this morning began asking directions to the many beaches around Boston. Most of the players were there to escape the heat of the hotel lobbies and enjoy their day from the national sport.

The games to-morrow will likely be the greatest attraction at the Huntington grounds since that day that old Cy Young worked for the Napoleons against the Red Legs.

Manager Lake showed that Eddie Cicotte was right as edge with a good bunch of curves on his slants when he worked him against the Browns in the first game of a double-header on July 4th. It on his opponents from the start, and retired after his team had made enough runs to win the game. This is like a win over the Reds already, although Jennings will use one of his very best pitchers in the second game Lake will probably send Joe Wood to Hurling Hill. His speed should do a great deal against the Tigers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 2.—By an order of Secretary Heydler, the Doves and Cardinals will not meet this afternoon in the last scheduled game of their series. This order was issued out of respect of the funeral of Harry C. Pulliam, the late National League president.

The Doves are due to play in Chicago to-morrow, and Harry Smith figured that they would leave this city to-day some time and get to Chicago tonight. By this arrangement the Doves will get a night's rest in Missouri before tackling the Cubs.

The players, while feeling the sadness of the occasion, welcomed the rest, for the Doves wanted their chance to pick off the last game of the series.

The coming series in Chicago looks about as bright as a new hole for the lowly pennant seekers from Boston, for the Cubs have just gobbled up the fourth and fifth of the series played this year. They recently captured five straight games while in Boston, and with the Cubs' eyes on the visitors' bench to-morrow afternoon it looks comparatively easy for Chance's men.

Harry Smith didn't look so much on the dark side of his team's chances with the Cubs' world's champs, and said this morning: "I'm certainly sorry to leave this city without a return crack at Brennahan's warriors, for I think we would have won. We made them play extra innings for one of the games and they lost the other right to the last round. Of course we don't figure on working any wonders in our next series, that with the Chicago Cubs, but I still think we will be the goats all the time. You know we chipped one over on Chance's men when we visited their camp and we may turn the trick again. I hear that Chance is waiting for us with a view to hoping to catch up a few points on the Pirates by whooping us, but he'd better have a care or two, for we're always fighting."

Harry Smith figured on that he would likely use White against the Cubs to-morrow. Kitts always figures on a good ball against the Windy City team, for he was assured from that organization early in the spring without any word to discuss a chance to make good. "Revenge is sweet," says Kitts, and goes in to pitch his very best.

While the Doves did not start off brilliantly playing the Cardinals, they wound up the series in a slam of a game by whipping the Sunday game with 14,000 fans watching them, and gave the visitors none to spare. The beauty of the win was the fact that Beckman, the youngster who recently beat the champion Cubs, was put out of business by the Doves.

Manager Huston started for the visitors, but after the sixth Manager Smith, rather than take too many chances, pulled him out in favor of Richie, the steady one.

BOB TAFT IN ESSEX TENNIS TOURNAMENT

BEVERLY, Aug. 2—Robert Taft will be among the players in the Essex County Club tennis tourney, which begins on the Manchester grounds to-day, and it is expected that Miss Helen Taft, his sister, will enter for the ladies' events in the week following. President Taft is expected at his Summer home at the Cove this week. He may attend the games played by his son and daughter.

This tourney will be one of the most notable ever known. All the crack players on the North Shore are eligible. The stars of the Monserrat, Myopia and Naham clubs will be among the contestants. The spectators will include society leaders and diplomats, statesmen and a sprinkling of European nobility.

Robert Taft entered for the Monserrat tourney and showed himself a fine tennis player. But he lost out early, lasting only into the second round. Judges of play, however, said that his form was better than his luck. He hopes for better fortune this time. In the preliminary singles he will play against H. S. McKee. In the doubles his partner will be William Blair and their opponents will be C. E. Kennedy and son.

Miss Eleanora Sears is among the ladies who have entered, and if Miss Helen Taft is not in the list there will be great disappointment.

For the preliminary singles the following men have entered:

J. Kennard vs. J. Conly, E. J. Shattuck vs. R. S. Lovering, C. W. Cook vs. N. S. Bartlett, Jr., H. K. Caner, Jr., vs. J. Reece, C. Culbertson vs. C. Cora, R. Hayes vs. R. Jordan, C. E. Cotting, Jr., vs. R. Storer, William Blair vs. J. F. Wilson, Jr., M. Bartlett vs. S. Cutting.

Second round, preliminary singles—H. S. Magee vs. Robert Taft, Y. C. Caner vs. ——S. Blair vs. F. C. Kennedy, C. Amory vs. E. C. Pitz.

Men's doubles—Bartlett brothers vs. Culbertson and McKee, C. E. Kennedy and son vs. Robert Taft and William Blair, Cotting and Amory vs. Reece and Pitz, Lovering and Stockton vs. ——Caner brothers, Cotting and E. C. Dana.

WHITE CAR USED KEROSENE FOR FUEL ON TOUR

By J. C. KERRISON.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 2.—A feature of the tour which was watched with special interest was that the White steamer used kerosene, or "coal oil," as fuel instead of gasoline. The new fuel worked splendidly throughout the 2,650 mile journey, and all claims made in its behalf were fully proved, first of all as regards cheapness, the White driver secured kerosene all along the route from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. cheaper per gallon than was paid for gasoline; secondly, the new fuel was handled without any precautions, and it was not unusual to see kerosene being poured into the fuel tank while the crew of the car and an interested crowd stood close by with lighted cigars and cigarettes; thirdly, the new fuel proved to be absolutely without smoke or smell; fourthly, kerosene could be purchased at whatever part of the route most convenient, and not one during the trip through the ten States of the Middle West was there found a grocery store where kerosene was not readily and cheaply obtained. Finally, the amount of fuel used on the trip showed that kerosene is at least 15 per cent. more efficient gallon for gallon than gasoline. The car in other respects made a most creditable showing, and there was the usual rivalry among the chauffeurs to be assigned to the White so that they could ride with the maximum of comfort. The only adjustments or repairs charged against the car during the long trip was tightening a lubricator pipe and wiping a damaged undershirt.

These penalties were not inflicted until more than 2,000 miles had been completed with an absolutely perfect score.

TO TRY STREET'S FEAT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.— Manager Billy Sullivan of the White Sox intends to attempt to duplicate Charley Street's feat of catching a ball thrown from the Washington monument. Sullivan was to have made the trial yesterday morning. A permit had been secured and all arrangements made, but on second thought Sullivan decided that it would be taking too long a chance to make the attempt now, and will wait till later.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

HERE'S A NEW ONE. DID YOU know that watermelons will not grow in any place where the colored brother is considered as good as a white man? Here is how I got it:

After the fight at Salem the other night Mish Murray and several friends were waiting at the station for the train to Boston, when Sam Langford came along. In the hand that may put Ketchel to sleep Sam carried a huge sandwich.

"Hello, Sam," said Mish, "what are you doing with that? Where's the watermelon?"

"Watermelon? Say, Mistah Murray, I ain't no watermelon nigguh. Lemme tell yuh something. When I was bohn, up thesh in Nova Scotia, a colored man is best as good as a white man, and yuh know a watermelon won't grow in no place like that!"

NEW YORK HAS SENT MANY A bunch of cheese over here disguised as bosses, but about the worst yet was Mark McDonald, who was supposed to mix it up with Porky Flynn at Salem the other night. Mick might be all right in a scrap in a back alley in the Cherry Hill district, but after his exhibition at Salem it would be taking money under false pretenses for any club about Boston to put him on. He managed to stay the full twelve rounds with the youthful Porky, but after the first few rounds every time Mick got hurt he looked in the fan trouble. From that time on he stalled all the way, waiting for a chance to sneak over the wallop he is supposed to pack. From the looks of things he forgot to bring the wallop with him or else lost it in some saloon before he reached the ring.

Straight Dope.

Dear Dope—What you would have to say after Jeff had made good by putting his fortune on him? Well, he followed instructions, no doubt, all over the country.

You have given Jeff an awful roasting right along in your dope column, but I am able to say, I think, that very few of your readers believe as you did, that the big fellow had no chance. Jeff, you have fooled them and make folks believe he was fourflushing.

Starting to "speak" stood and say "he talks like the real old Jeff."

Did he ever go back on his word in his whole ring career? Did you ever know him to not make good? In fact, has he ever done anything to give you cause to roast him as you have? Well, I guess not. Therefore, you have been wrong, and by following the game would be much better than it is to-day.

He has just shown you in your hole, so to a man and come out in a good strong article and admit you was wrong right along.

He has made good, as he said he would and as he always has, so, in justice to him and himself, show your readers that you have been wrong and that Jeff is the man that few readers in future. This is simply dope. Very truly, ALLAN LODEY.

Fort Fairfield, Me.

P. S.—PS bet a Panama hat to a cigarette that I won't see this letter in print.

Mercy alive, Allan, ain't you the peevish thing? After a diligent hunt over the map of Aroostook County I found several fly specks, and when one of them labeled Fort Fairfield wouldn't brush off I knew I had found the town—now made famous. But, on the level, don't you live in Maple Grove or Goodrich? You remind me of a fellow by the same name who used to live over in Caribou, but he knew so much they chased him away one dark night. Not the same Lodey, are you? What I said about Jeff still goes. His money could make the only talk the sport world cared to hear, and there is a big enough hole in his fight agreement to drive your Uncle Bill's ox team through. I'll pass your letter along to Jeff. He'll be glad to hear from a wizard like you.

By the way, Allan, did you ever have money enough, all at one time, to buy a Panama hat? Honest now, tell me.

Extra. Special Cable from Washburn, Ala. Lumbhurst, Salem, Lena and the North Shore: Have just (permanently)—Captain Bill Daly—and the band at the big dance at Mrs. Hall Ward's home to-morrow afternoon.

Ever see Captain Bill lead that band? Creature has nothing on him, and the simple announcement that Captain Bill is to do stunts with the baton is usually sufficient to bring out the S. R. O. sign. Captain Bill used to be a dresser for Sousa, or Sousa was a dresser for Captain Bill, and one learned from the other, but I don't just see to remember which was which. "Hip" Ward has the big dance all to himself, mean't they. Hap?

HONEY MELLODY PAID ME A CALL the other day and he had with him that delightful ultra-French shoulder shrug that Auerbuns always acquire after they have spent a few weeks in Paris—or Puree as Honey calls it. You ought to get him to do it for you. He will if you ask him. By the way, Honey had some new photographs made in Paris—excuse me, I mean Puree—which will greatly please Jimmy Gardner, Tommy Quill, Mike Twin Sullivan and some others of the local mitt artists, who figure they have a look in on the welterweight title. Across the pictures is printed:

Honey Mellody,
World's Welterweight Champion,
Champion of the Impossible Weight.
145 Lbs. or Less.

Honey says it will give him great pleasure to bait the stuffing out of Marcel Moris, the French middleweight champion, who is now in New York. Marcel Wayne wrote me some time ago that he would "break the Mellody neck," and Honey says he is willing to concede the frog eater ten or a dozen pounds and would be glad if the Armory A. A. would stage the bout.

THE FOLLOWING NEATLY EN graved invitation drifted to the Straight Dope desk Saturday and I'm strong for Joan pulling off his "exhibition," as he calls the feat he has yet to perform:

You are cordially invited to attend a sparring exhibition, given by Joan Gallagher, Boston light weight, assisted by Jerry Everett on Tuesday, August 3, 1909, at 12 o'clock. Refreshments.

That last word almost made me decide to go, but then I happened to think that the refreshments might be for John and Jerry, not me, so I'm going to make some further inquiries before I commit myself.

Sport Dope, Boston American.

With the bases full the batter hits a foul. The catcher misses it and delivers ball to pitcher, but the pitcher hangs on the ball touches it and lets it go. The ball rolls to the outfield while the runners all cross home. The umpire makes the runners go back to their bases, he to correct or could the runners go home and the scores count? IN DOUBT.

Empire was right. The ball is not in play after a foul not caught on the fly until it has been held by the pitcher standing in his position and the umpire has called "play." See rule No. 36 if still "in doubt."

Sport Dope, Boston American.

1B0 Hans Wagner ever pitch for Pittsburg? Did he ever pay off any position than short stop in his career in the big league?

L. S. MURPHY.

He has played about every position and possibly may have finished out a game for the Pirates, but not enough to get in the records. Yes, he has played in the outfield and first base, but has been held at shortstop because of his great strength there.

Sport Dope, Boston American.

Second and third bases are occupied with one out, and the batter hits a fly to the outfield, catches it, making two out. When the ball is hit the runner on second starts for third and the fielder throws it to second. Whereupon the runner on third starts for home. The second baseman drops the ball momentarily, but the runner slides past the base. The second baseman recovers the ball and hurries him out in the runner who was on third entitled to a score if he crossed the plate before the runner on second is touched out?

E. F. MANNING.

The run counted provided, of course, the runner remained on third or retouched it after the fly was caught.

IT TOOK EIGHT PLAYERS FOR DOUBLE PLAY

What is conceded to be the most complicated double play in the history of baseball was made at Albany a few days ago, in a game against Syracuse. The play involved every player on the Albany team save the right fielder, and it was so perfect as to attract attention throughout the East.

Syracuse had runners on first and third and one out, when the office was given for a double steal. The pitcher, suspecting, turned a new trick. Instead of pitching to the plate, he made a half balk motion and whipped the ball to third, drawing the runner off first. The man on third dived back to the bag, and the baseman threw to second, stopping the man approaching, who turned back to first and beat the throw.

As the second pitcher threw to first, the man on third streaked for home, but was turned back by the first baseman's throw to the catcher. As he was being run down by the catcher, third baseman and left fielder, the man on first continued around the gulch. The left fielder finally touched out the runner between third and home, and turned to get the man between second and third. The ball was thrown back and forth several times, the putout finally going to the left fielder, who had hurried to to join the play.

In all, the ball was thrown eighteen times, every man but the right fielder had assists, and two outfielders were credited with putouts or an infield play.

CHAMPION M'LEAN DEFENDS BIKE TITLE

Hugh MacLean, the middle distance bicycle champion of Europe, has come out of retirement and proposes to defend his title again. Hugh became a manager of petite fighters last Spring, and with Barney Ferguson annexed some coin and watched Jimmy Magan and Elmer Collins fight out their difference on the track. The phenomenal success of Collins, coupled with the remarks that MacLean retired in time to save himself, aroused the Chelsea rider, and he took a quiet course in training and Saturday night rode a two-mile exhibition in 2m. 57s. at the Broadway, has been doing this year at the beach, and decided he was good enough to take a dyer. He recently received several offers and today will post a forfeit to ride four races for the benefit of the Red Cross. His first race will be next Saturday night in a 25-mile handicap at the Broadway against Peter Drobeck and Pat Logan, each having a handicap of two laps. He will then take on Jimmy Moran.

JACK BURKE MAY TRAIN PRINCETON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. Jack Burke, until recently trainer of the New York Americans and in line for the appointment of head trainer of Princeton's athletes for the coming season, has left the game of college sportdom, as for several years he was assistant to Mike Murphy at the University of Pennsylvania. In his younger days Burke was one of the fleetest cinder path men in the country, and for several years he held the record for the quarter mile.

LOUISVILLE GAME OFF.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2—By order of President O'Brien, the Minneapolis and Louisville ball clubs of the American Association scheduled to be played in Louisville to-day will not be pulled on account of the funeral of Harry Pulliam. The other games of the league will be played.

PLENTY OF ATHLETICS FOR SUMMER SEASON

There will be plenty of amateur sport for the athletes in New England for the rest of the Summer, as the list of events unearthed by the N. E. A. A. U. has been announced.

Next Saturday the date of Heaven Club's field forth at the Lowell street grounds with handicap events, as follows. Open to all registered athletes: 100 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yards run; mile run; three mile run; putting 16 pound shot; running high jump; open team races. Scratch; running hop, step and jump or two hop and jump; pole vaulting. There will be several swimming races, including 100 yards and 440 yards, open to East Boston only; 220 yards and mile, open to all, to take place at Orient Heights. Entries close August 10 with Matt Leary, West Island Park, East Boston.

The Norwood Press Club will hold a big set of open athletic games at Norwood on Monday, September 6, the games to start at 2 o'clock. The handicap events are 100 yard dash, one-sixth mile run, 880 yard run, mile run, 120-yard hurdles, three-mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, all handicap. Gold watches will be the prizes to winners in all but jumps, for which fobs are offered. Second prizes will be valuable watch fobs. The games will be held on a cinder track, six laps to the mile. Entries close August 28, with Harold W. Baker, Norwood, Mass.

Man Makes Himself Ugly; Blames Nature

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

OBSERVE how beautiful is Nature, in youth, in maturity and in old age, oh, mortal!

Then ask yourself, Why is man beautiful only in youth?

Look upon any landscape in Spring, in Summer, and again in Autumn; how varied are its attractions, and how they deepen and grow in splendor with the passing of the months. More wonderful and vivid are the charms of the wood and field and meadows in Autumn than in Summer. And when the Winter comes, then again may we see beauty and majesty in the snow-covered landscape and in the forest, wearing its white mantle with the dignity of a Roman Senator supporting his toga.

It is seldom indeed that one finds a repulsive scene in any season, unless it is some spot disfigured by the hand of man. Nature left to her own ways grows old beautifully.

Why, then, should man, the most animated and intellectual expression of Nature, so rarely follow her example?

Why should the vast majority of men and women lose their personal charms after thirty and begin to grow plain, more frequently ugly, and almost universally commonplace with the passing of each decade?

The Old Hindoo Belief

The old Hindoo philosophers said thousands of years ago that there was only one thing in the universe; they called it "Akasa," and they said it was the expression of God, in various forms. Of this God-stuff all things came.

Rocks, trees and oceans and rivers were one way this Akasa expressed itself, and man was the same thing in a higher rate of vibration. All is one absolute existence. So said the "Seers" ages ago.

Then why do we not grow more beautiful with time?

Why do we not more and more reveal the divine?

Small children are, as a rule, universally beautiful. It is the exceptional instance when a child is wholly without charm.

Young lads and misses are almost invariably attractive; and many mature men and women are handsome. But the majority cease to be a pleasure to the eye after thirty-five.

The mouth loses its curves; the eyes grows hard or restless; the cheeks sag or sink; the brow is strained and creased, and the skin loses its lustre.

The form becomes attenuated or heavy and graceless.

And all these things, we say, are "natural" and to be expected with the passing of youth.

But It Is Not Natural

But they are not natural, since in nature there are only varying degrees of beauty with the passing of time.

Men and women make themselves ugly.

Nature leaves itself to the care of God.

Man forgets that he is the expression of that law, and undertakes to think out a system of life based on youth, middle age and old age, and to form laws which govern those periods. He has decided that we must all fade and grow old and become decrepit and ugly in time.

And he proceeds to aid the process by fretful worrying and petty thinking; by hatred and malice; by carnings and strivings; by gross feeding and unnatural drinking, and by every false idea and method of life conceivable by earth-bound standards of mind he makes himself ugly and commonplace after the first flush of youth has faded from his brow.

With right thinking and living and proper diet, and sensible care of the temple of the soul, the human body should grow more beautiful and refined with age.

The skin should grow in brilliancy; the eye should glow with greater instre.

The real beauty of the eye depends upon the light from within, and this light should shine with greater and greater radiance as the objects of earth cease to engross the mind and after the material pleasures have lost their supreme hold upon the heart.

The mouth, which in little children and young men and maidens curves with hope and happiness, should be more beautiful with the added experiences of life as we grow old. Instead, how unusual is an attractive mouth in a mature man or woman!

It Is Not the Effect of Time.

It is not the effect of time, but the effect of our own selfish and unworthy and despondent thoughts, that turns the cupid's bow into a thin, straight line or an inverted horseshoe. It is not time or nature which puts huge sacks under eyes and takes the brilliancy from our skins; it is our indulgence in foods which do not nourish or sustain life, but only stimulate us temporarily, and afterward clog the system and interfere with circulation.

Selfishness, self-indulgence, lack of gratitude to God for our blessings, jealousy, striving after false standards, fear, doubt, lack of love and sympathy, intolerance and narrow thoughts, these are the causes which turn the beautiful young people of the world into ugly or commonplace men and women.

We may be as beautiful as the forest or the rocks if we will live up to the consciousness that with the passing of each year God is working more and more fully through our personalities to reveal the beauty of His universe.

And when the final hour comes we may be so regarded and refined that death will be only the stepping from one plane of existence to another, without sickness and without pain.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

A LADY intent on raising some chickens purchased some eggs for the purpose and inquired of a friend as to how long the eggs must remain under the hen. The friend replied "Three weeks for chickens and four weeks for ducks."

They met again some time later, and the friend asked how the chickens had turned out.

"Oh, very badly," replied the lady; "after three weeks I looked, and there were no chickens; so I took the hen away, as, of course, I didn't want ducks."

LIMIT OF LANDS

By ANDREW LANG

BETWEEN the circling ocean sea
And the poplars of Persephone
There lies a strip of barren sand,
Flecked with the sea's last spray and strown
With waste leaves of poplars, blown
From gardens of the shadow land.

With altars of old sacrifice
The shore is set in mournful wise—
The mists upon the ocean brood;
Between the water and the air
The clouds are born that float and fare
Between the water and the wood.

Upon the gray sea never sail
Of mortals passed within our hail,
Where the last weak waves faint and flow;
We heard within the poplar pale
The murmur of a doubtful wail
Of voices loved so long ago.

We scarce had care to die or live,
We had no honey cake to give
No wine of sacrifice to shed;
There lies no new path over sea,
And now we know how faint they be,
The feasts and voices of the Dead.

Ah, flowers and dance! Ah, sun and snow!
Glad life, sad life we did forego
To dream of quiet, ease and rest;
Ah, would the fleet sweet roses here
Poured light and perfume through the drear
Pale year, and wan land of the west.

Sad youth, that let the spring go by
Because the spring is swift to fly;
Sad youth, that feared to mourn or love.

Behold how sadder far is this,
To know that rest is nowise bliss,
And darkness is the end thereof.

Unplayed Hunches Are Best

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE cashier stooped quickly and picking up the little slip of pasteboard that the bill clerk had dropped, restored it to him with a polite bow. "Permit me," he said.

"Yours truly," returned the bill clerk, in acknowledgment.

"Don't mention it, I beg," said the cashier, "and don't blush. Above all things, don't blush, Johnny. A blush is a confession, not only of guilt, but of guilty knowledge of guilt. If you had received that bit of damning evidence in a composed manner I'd have naturally supposed you didn't realize how wicked you were. As it is, your immorality is patent."

"I had a hunch," replied the bill clerk. "I thought it was strong enough to justify a two-spot. Most generally, I back what ever's doped out and that's what keeps me from buying steam yachts and wine for the crowd. According to the dope this particular quadruped is due anywhere from ten minutes to an hour and a half after schedule time."

"That seems very promising," conceited the cashier. "It seems reasonable and logical. I suppose that it will leave the rest stringing out the other side of the quarter post. Still, I would place greater reliance on the hunch. A hunch isn't liable to unforeseen accidents; it looks ahead, it takes account of all the crooks and turns and then arrives with both feet. It's the next turn to an infallibility, a hunch is.

"I've had hunches myself, although I must admit that the best one occurred to me when I didn't have the two-spot. Something has seemed to whisper, 'Put on every cent that you can beg or borrow.' This is at once a pipe and a gold-dig. I suppose that is what the little inward monitor said to you."

Something like it," confessed the bill clerk.

"I thought so," said the cashier. "Did your hunch wear a check suit and a greenish-black mustache?"

"It did not," replied the bill clerk, somewhat sullenly.

"Don't be angry with me, Johnny," pleaded the cashier. "One or two of my hunches were so habited, that's all. One hunch took me to lunch. How's that for a rhyme? It's a fact, however. It had a most engaging smile and an honest, untroubled face. It also had a pair of gold nuine. There wasn't any question about that, because I saw the gold myself sticking out of some pieces of rock that the hunch carried in a buckskin sack. A man ought to be able to believe his eyes—what?"

"Well, I've never been scared enough for that," said the bill clerk.

"I made over 30 per cent. on the stock I bought inside of a week," remarked the cashier in a casual sort of way. "I could have kept longer, but I had a hunch that it was a good time to let my holdings go. You'll never have that kind, though. You'll wag along with half your week's wages in your pocket until you come to where a man is jiggling a little pea about and you'll have a hunch that the pea is under the middle shell."

"If I do, I can lie about it and say that I guessed right, I suppose," retorted the bill clerk.

"Waiving that point for the time being, I would like to know whether you intend to continue to put your faith in hunches," said the cashier, "because if you do, you'll be hunting a new job before Christmas. You take that from me. I get it from the paddock. I don't say gambling's any worse than petty theft or smoking opium, but employers are prejudiced against it. Quit it!"

"Well, maybe I will," said the bill clerk. "I'll see how I come out on this."

"Did your hunch wear a check suit and a greenish-black mustache?"

Specialized Woman; What Is the Gain

By WINIFRED BLACK

I WENT to an "advanced" dinner for "advanced" women the other day, and listened to "advanced" ideas from an "advanced" speaker, till I am so "advanced" that I'm afraid to pick up this morning's paper and look at the date lest I find myself in the middle of the fifteth century, or so.

The advanced speaker told us, in the most advanced kind of language, that the day of specialization had come, and that woman was about to take her proper specialized place in the properly specialized world.

She threw the old-fashioned mother and housekeeper and homemaker out into the dustbin of the ages, and with the splashing wheel and the tallow candle.

"We want specialized cooks," she said, "and specialized nurses and specialized menders, and specialized mothers—the woman who can cook, will cook—and do nothing else.

"The woman who can take care of babies, will take care of babies—and do nothing else, and the world will no longer be a treadmill, full of white-faced, sad-eyed beasts of burden we call women."

Isn't it interesting?

I do hope some of it will happen while I am alive to see it. I should so love to see the specialized things that are going to happen in this specialized world.

The specialized sweetheart, for instance, the specialized mother, the specialized husband—won't they be lovely?

What's the use of wasting your time and energy falling in love and getting married and having children? Just send out and get a specialist to do all these things for you.

Won't it be fine and free and independent, when we are all raised together like a lot of chickens in an incubator?—and when 700 or 800 grown men and women will be calling the same specialized person "mamma"?—and going out to her grave to shed a few million specialized tears over her headstone?

Free to roll our little specialties in the market without any folly of love or gratitude or hope or foolish laughter over the charming folly of our foolish little children to keep us from doing our appointed tasks.

Free—no little hands clinging to our skirts—no little eyes smiling up into ours.

Free, with the love of no mere man to lean on and to hope for and to trust. Free —and then I wonder what all the work will be about.

AN INDOOR PICNIC

My Wife's Gone to the Country. Hurray! Hurray!

New Words to the Old Melody

By IRVING BERLIN

One of the Authors of the Original Song

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

I.

BROWN went into a foolhouse where lunatics reside.
The man in charge showed him around to where a madman cried:
"My wife, my wife, where is she?
'twas her that drove me mad!"
Brown cried, "Don't talk so foolish, married life is not so bad."

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
Expect me here—some time this year—my wife's gone away.

II.

Last week he had a caller, 'twas wife's mother dear,

She said, "I've come to see my child and might stay just a year;"
"You will, will you," said Browney.
"Just try and take a chance;
It's peaches while your child is here, but now I wear the pants."

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the
rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
Just rest assured—I'm cured, I'm cured—my wife's gone away.

III.

He took a trip to Revere, and there
upon the beach,
He met a charming female,
Browney thought she was a peach;
She rolled her eyes at Browney
as he rolled a cigarette.
She said, "I know you're married," Browney answered, "Dear don't fret."

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the
rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray—Hurray!
I'm with you till the cows come home—my wife's mother dear,

SHE WANTED TO GET THIN

But She Had to Eat to Get Some Comfort Out of Life

THE girl who had just helped herself to a particularly large and luscious chocolate cream paused with the confection suspended in the air at a remark from the girl who was looking over samples.

"Don't talk sheath gowns to me!" she cried. "I'd look nice in a sheath gown, wouldn't I? I've gained twenty pounds this Summer and I wasn't exactly what you'd call thin when I started in. I could cry my eyes out! I don't want to be fat."

"Well, you needn't be," said the girl who was embroidering. "It is perfectly easy to get thin. I know, because I had a cousin who was perfectly awful, she was so stout. All she did was to stand up for twenty minutes after every meal—just stand still without leaning against anything. It tires your muscles, you know, and——"

"How thin did she get?" breathlessly inquired the girl who had gained twenty pounds.

"Oh, she wasn't what you'd call thin," said the girl who was embroidering. "She stood up after every meal for a year and she lost five pounds."——

"Oh, nonsense!" snapped the stout girl, disappointedly.

"Well," indignantly said the girl who was embroidering, "five pounds is a lot! Just suppose you had five pounds added to your face!"

"I'll tell you how to get thin," broke in the girl who was tying the terriers' ears together with a piece of ribbon. "Heil. I read about it in the paper. Pick out the hardest floor in the house and put on a kimono and just roll."

"But wouldn't it hurt" chorused the others.

"Of course!" said the girl who was playing with the terrier. "Getting thin isn't like going to an afternoon tea party. That's the reason so many people are fat—it isn't comfor hle to get thin. It's hard work I supp ie while you are rolling you could use the time reciting poems that you've memorized or calculating what kind of a new hat you'd get, or"——

"Did you ever know any one who rolled?" demanded the stout girl, with reviving hope and the light of desperate courage in her eyes.

"Well," said the girl who had introduced the subject, "I never really knew any one, but the newspaper said it would make you like a sylph. You might try."

"I'd rather be fat than black and blue," said the stout girl, gloomily. "I'm just discouraged, I——"

The girl who was looking over samples said: "I knew a girl once who went without breakfast and it was perfectly wonderful——"

"I never in my life," said the stout girl in an injured tone, "ate anything for breakfast but a cup of coffee with cut cream or sugar and one piece of toast! And one of the stoutest girls I know has never eaten breakfast since she was a child! She just isn't hungry! And she gets fatter every year! And I know another girl who ate with a pair of tiny scales on the table before her and weighed every mouthful and ran if you passed the sugar and fainted at the sight of a potato. The last I heard she

"You're crazy," remarked the girl, who was sitting on the telephone book, was gaining three pounds a week! Dieting agreed with her!"

"I've heard of another way," spoke up the girl in the corner. "You know your state of mind has everything to do with your health. If you think of disagreeable things and people you don't like it will help you to get thin. Or if you can cultivate an unpleasant disposition——"

"I never was loved for being Little Lucy the angel child," said the stout girl, meditatively. "My family won't stand for any more ill-temper from me, I'm afraid. That sort of keeping your mind on people you hate strikes me as sensible. Still, it's a severe penalty to pay for more thinness! I believe I'll get Fred Thompson to promise to call on me twice a week! I don't know anyone I dislike more than I do him. I don't like the way he brushes his hair or pronounces his a's or sits down or his ideas or his necktie, or the way he cuts magazine leaves. I particularly dislike him in the act of trying to be sociable. I always want to pound the sofa cushions when he is around. I think I should get thin just thinking about his coming and my having to entertain him. Milly, you're sitting on the telephone book—get up, so I can find his number! I shall begin right away."

"You're crazy!" remarked the girl who was sitting on the telephone book. "If you're going to be fat you'll be fat, and if you're going to be thin you can't help it! What's the use?"

"Maybe you're right," gloomily said the girl who was stout.

She sighed. Suddenly she sat up.

"Give me some more chocolate creams," she ordered. "I've got to get a little comfort out of life."

THE MIGHTY PEN

"That man may seem to you somewhat uneducated, and yet he makes a fine living by his pen."

"Why, I would never take him for a writer."

"He isn't; he breeds pigs."

Use Common Sense About Child Study

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A LITTLE girl killed herself the other day as the result of overstudy.

Failure to pass her high school examinations so worked upon her poor little tired brain that it became unbalanced and she ended her troubles by suicide.

There is one great, important thing to impress on the minds of children, especially those who are inclined to over-close application to study, and that is that their health is more important than their learning.

In the case of Eleanor Freitag, her mother earnestly pleaded with her to take a rest, but the child had reached such a nervous state that she could not.

She wanted to be a school teacher and take care of her mother. Her strength was not equal to her ambition, however, and to-day the poor little overworked body and brain lie taking their last long sleep, while the mother, who was to be taken care of, weeps her lonely heart out.

Urge Children to Rest

Mrs. Freitag was a wise mother and tried her best to influence her child to rest, but the child's ambition was too strong for her.

There are parents, however, who are not urging their ambitious children to rest, but sparring them on to renewed effort.

If a child is lazy and careless about its studies there is reason in urging it to exert itself, but when it is apt to overstudy, rather than otherwise, you cannot be too careful in aceing that it gets judicious rest.

Teach your children, especially your girls, that there are other important things in life than book learning.

Health is of the utmost importance. If the blood all goes to nourish the brain, the rest of the body will be poor and stunted.

To grow into a delicate, puny woman means to lead a life of misery.

The young, growing bodies need play and fresh air, just as much as the brain needs education.

Moderation is the keynote to a child's welfare; let there be school, but let there be play also.

There are children who, if left to themselves, will use their brains during all their waking hours. They will have to be driven to play and, if not carefully watched, will steal away to a quiet corner and a book at every opportunity.

On the other hand there are healthy little savages who have to be fairly tied down to their books in order to gain even the rudiments of an education.

The School Year a Hard One

For an earnest, ambitious child, the school year means hard work, and it should have absolute rest and diversion during vacation.

Tell your girls that education is a fine thing, but so also are health and all the womanly domestic accomplishments.

If a girl sacrifices her health to her learning she will develop into a peevish woman, a burden to herself and all others.

If your child is a genius you cannot control nature, but if she is just an ambitious little girl who desires to shine in some special branch of study you can guide her so that her health will not be sacrificed to feed her ambition.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TOO YOUNG FOR LOVE TROUBLES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of sixteen, and while at business college, a few months ago, I met a young man to whom I care very much. This young man treated me very well until he was given an introduction to some of my girl friends, and then he did all kinds of things to make me jealous. He has even gone so far as to allow me to go home, after 10 o'clock at night, alone. He has told my friends he cares a great deal for me, but never treats me in that way.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I am a very pretty girl and have many young men admirers, but I don't care for them as much as I do for this certain one. I have never done anything for him to make him angry with me, and as you have helped me before I call on you again to solve this question: Shall I have nothing more to do with this young man? BROKEN-HEARTED.

If he treats you rudely you most certainly should have nothing more to do with him. You are too young yet, dear, to be bothering your head about men. It is too bad not to stay a little girl as long as you can.

"G" IS RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Kindly inform me which is the proper thing to do.

"G" says when a girl becomes engaged the girl should call on the man's mother first.

"G" says his mother should call on her first. INTERESTED.

"G" is right. The newly engaged mother should call on the girl or invite her to the house, if she is unable to call.

Today's Best Story

MR. MATHEWS was lingering over his second cup at the breakfast table, and glancing complacently at the clock.

"Nice and early this morning," he said. "I don't know," responded Mrs. Mathews; "you had better take the too much confidence in the clock. It stopped at 5 o'clock this morning, and I set it going by guesswork."

"Were you up at 5 o'clock?" asked Mr. Mathews shrewdly.

"Of course not."

"What time did you say the clock stopped?"

"At five."

"If you weren't up at five," replied the man, with a puzzled look, "how on earth do you know when the clock stopped?"

"Why, dear, it stayed stopped," was the reply.

Mr. Mathews did not say another word. He gulped down his coffee and rushed for his train.

Can You Make Good Clam Chowder? Tell Mr. Hicks and Get a Prize

EVERY housewife in New England ought to know how to make clam chowder. Every housewife in New England at least thinks she knows how. Judging from the vast quantity of recipes received in answer to Charles T. Hicks's plaint that he could no longer get the real goods as it used to be served, and asking if the making of clam chowder had become a lost art, Mr. Hicks, through the BOSTON AMERICAN, offered a $5 prize for the best recipe and the AMERICAN has offered $5 for the next best. Here are some of the recipes submitted in contest:

SAYS IT'S REAL ARTICLE.

Does this strike your fancy? Try it and get a taste of real clam chowder. To begin with, slice half a pound of salt pork thin, fry with three onions in kettle; chowder is to be made in here ready for serving. Add quart of boiling water, one quart of sliced potatoes and one quart of freshly opened clams; add these to pork and onions and boil, then add of quart of fresh milk, one dozen sifted crackers and one tablespoon of butter.

Orchard street, Beachmont.

"THIS ALWAYS PLEASES."

My clam chowder always pleases, and it will please you if you will try it. Cut in dice three slices of fat pork into an agate pot, put on the stove to try out, when all fried out take the pieces of fat pork out; into that put about three quarts of sliced onions, cut up small; let that simmer for about three minutes, then put in about two quarts of water in on the onions; then slice boiling water in on the onions; then slice up about five or six potatoes, put that in and let potatoes boil for five minutes, then put in about two dozen clams in last and let that boil for five more minutes (any longer will toughen the clams), then add last one pint of milk; let that all come to one good boil and take off of the stove. Season to taste; if crackers are liked in chowder, put in one dozen and you are waiting to serve hot.

MRS. W. HORNE.

No. 11 Harbor View street, Dorchester.

PROOF OF THE PUDDING.

It's an old saying that the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof," therefore try this. Mr. Hicks's grandmother's grandmother makes it and she is ninety years old. Take one-half pound of fat salt pork cut into dice and fried crisp, one quart of onions fried in the fat, but not browned, two quarts of potatoes sliced, pepper and salt to taste, also one tablespoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of cayenne pepper and three pints of boiling water, now boil one-half hour, then add one quart of clams or quahaugs chopped after pinching the black off the stomach out, add liquor of clams and one-quarter pound of butter, now boil ten or fifteen minutes. If pilot bread is used add one dozen crackers, if not they may be added, but will be soggy. Season well. MRS. A. B. MULLIN.

No. 33 Baker street, Providence.

WILL PICKLE YOUR SKATE.

I believe my clam chowder recipe is in a class by itself and you will agree with me after you try it. It will please your palate. Use one quart of clams, six large crackers; fry four slices of pork and put in an iron pan; take it out soon as brown, leaving the fat in the pan; put in about two big onions and fry them in the pork fat. Have about six potatoes sliced fine and then put in a layer of potatoes then a layer of clams; season with pepper and plenty of salt, then a layer of onions and the bits of pork that have been fried, add a layer of broken crackers, fill up the remainder this way and season the last of onions and as much water as will more than cover them. Cook 20 minutes or till the potatoes are done. Just before serving add one pint of milk.

MRS. LAURENCE ROBINSON

Pebble avenue, Point Shirley.

IS WORTH WHILE TO TRY.

Try this, Mr. Hicks, and see if the chowder is not like your mother used to make: Take one half pork fried out in a hot iron or copper pot for one hour or until shells burst open. Take out the clams and another vessel. Shell clams. After rinsing and drying pot, set upon stove and "fry" out or fry three ordinary slices of fat salt pork, cutting it into small pieces; then add clam water that was drained off and let come to a boil. Add four large or eight small potatoes sliced in a thickness of about half an inch. Two large or four or five small sized onions cut same thickness as potatoes, and boil one hour. Add clams, pint of milk and tablespoon of salt brown minutes before hour of boiling is up. When served, add pepper and butter to suit taste. To make larger quantities use ingredients in proportion.

J. M. MORAN.

No. 189 Vernon St., Roxbury, Mass.

EXPERIENCE BEHIND THIS.

I'm a Rhode Island chowder maker of long experience. To know what my chowder is like, you should try it. First get two quarts clams (opened), half pound fat pork, three onions the size of an egg. Chop clams and pork quite fine and fry out pork hard. Now take one quart of potatoes after they are well sliced and cooked, add one large pilot bread broken fine add the potatoes and clams until potatoes are done, then two quarts of water. While the potatoes and clams are cooking boiling fry onions, separate the rim and head from the soft part and chop quite fine. Now take half a pint of tomatoes; put on stove and stew. Add tablespoonful of sugar and teaspoon of bread soda; then fry potatoes, clams, onion and pork. Add quart and pint of milk; let come to a boil and take from stoves. Take off the stove and put your clams in. Season with pepper and butter.

GEORGE IRA HOLLAND.

No. 170 Bowdoin street, Dorchester.

CLAMS MUST BE CLEAN.

First of all good clean clams are required, not those taken from mud flats that are always muddy. Open the clams while alive, do not scald to remove shell. Remove black part of head and squeeze out the black substance, save the clam water and strain for the chowder. The material needed is about fifty good sized clams, a large bowl of salt pork, cut fine, onions finely sliced, potatoes cut into eighths. Fry out pork nicely, when scraps are brown remove and put in chopped onions. Do not allow onions to brown. Add a quart of hot water to onions, add clam water and allow chopped fine. Add pork scraps. After this boils potatoes and let cook, then add clams and the chowder is finished. Just before serving add a little butter with pepper and salt to taste. Add a quart of fresh milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and have sliced tomatoes or one-half of a can. Fry onions in a frying pan with pork fat that chowder was cooked in for a delightful clam.

MRS. G. F. PERKINS.

No. 56 Holden street, Providence.

FIT FOR THE PRESIDENT.

You must come to Franklin for a good chowder. Here is a chowder fit for a President, and I would like both he and you to try it: Take half pound salt pork, sliced, fry until brown, fry with it two medium onions, chop, fry onions in salt pork, then six potatoes, boil fifteen minutes in quart of water; add clam bouillon or clam water; chop clams after boiling ten minutes. Take three ripe tomatoes, cut up, add salt and pepper to taste. Add one quart milk, let boil fifteen minutes. For a chowder for six persons use two quarts of clams. Season to taste until ripe.

GATE OF HEAVEN CLUB FIELD DAY

The annual field day of the Gate of Heaven Club, City Point, South Boston, which will be held on the Dorchester High grounds Saturday, August 7, is expected to be the most successful affair of the kind that has been seen in this city and all who are connected with the arrangements are working hard to make it a success.

One of the most interesting of the many unique features that will be on the program will be the wheelbarrow race by the boys' teams. Many entries and a spirited contest is assured.

TAFT'S SMALL TARIFF VICTORY

It Shows How He Might Have Fought and Won All Along the Line

The tariff fight has been fought and lost. It is very hot in Washington, and the members of the House and Senate are weary and anxious to get away to cooler climes and less troublous scenes. The bill ought to be in the hands of the President by the end of this week, unless some of the "progressives" should show a more rebellious spirit than is expected in the circumstances and a greater degree of reserve strength and patriotism than is to be looked for with the thermometer hovering around the hundred line.

We are told in dispatches that President Taft is pleased. Unless there should be a great storm of protest which would shake him from his purpose he will sign the bill. He is said to have confided as much to his intimates. Mr. Taft has secured some concessions from Aldrich and the other STALWARTS of PRIVILEGE who dominate the Senate. In getting these concessions Mr. Taft thinks he achieved a great victory —a triumph which will cause the people to shout and bless his name. But in our judgment Mr. Taft is mistaken, and if he signs the bill which will come to him, we believe both he and his party will rue the day upon which the Senate's betrayal of the party's pledge was confirmed by him in whom the people had placed their real reliance.

The agitation for a revision of the tariff had its conception in the wrongs of the woollen schedule. It is this schedule which more than any other directly affects the average citizen. It had become manifest that we were paying more for the things that go on our backs than it was necessary to pay and at the same time insure a proper degree of protection to the wool industry of the country and all its dependent branches. This was a phase of the tariff which all could understand, and it was around the sentiment aroused by the extortions of the woollen schedule that the general agitation for a tariff revision revolved. The woollen schedule of the Payne bill will be the same as the woollen schedule of the Dingley bill. Already there has been a raise in the price of the "poor man's suit." That the raise could be made without opening the gates which shut out foreign competition is proof positive that the Dingley rates afforded an opportunity for extortion.

Early in his campaign for the Presidency President Taft made the people's cause his own. He declared for tariff revision upon the necessities of life when all the other leaders of his party were "standing pat" and proclaiming that any interference with the Dingley law would bring ruin upon the Republican party. Despite the great opposition to him among the leaders of his party because of the stand he took upon his issue, Mr. Taft was nominated at Chicago and succeeded in forcing into the Republican platform a pledge that, in the event of his election, the tariff would be revised. In his speeches during the campaign Mr. Taft explained his view of tariff revision. He pledged himself to revision downward, and especially to a reduction of the duties which oppressed the great body of the people.

When the tariff bill came before the Senate, some of the ablest and most progressive Republicans in that body championed with great ability and eloquence the cause to which Mr. Taft and his party stood pledged. They made a gallant fight for the right, but they were beaten down by Aldrich and his cohorts.

The bill as it went to Mr. Taft originally was a shocking repudiation of his solemn pledge. Undeniably Mr. Taft has made it less shocking. But we do not believe that President Taft or anybody else will be able to convince the people that the bill reported by the Conference Committee, and which it is understood the President will sign when it comes to him, is a redemption in good faith of the pledge made to the people that if the Republican party were elected they could count upon substantial relief from the tariff burdens of which they justly complained.

The fact that Mr. Taft bettered the bill does not relieve him of the responsibility for the carrying out of the promise which he and his party made to the people. The issue of tariff revision was Mr. Taft's own issue. Around it grew the sentiment which was largely instrumental in forcing his nomination, and to it more than anything else he owes his election.

The question which the American people will ask, and which President Taft must answer, is not: How much better did he make the outrageous Aldrich bill, but has he fully redeemed the promise he made to the people in the campaign?

The people will have little patience with talk about concessions. If Mr. Taft be not able to prove to them that he has brought about what he promised to bring about, then they will see in his signing of the Payne-Aldrich bill a sad surrender.

American Invasion of Europe

In the semi-humorous wail from France about the "American invasion" is a reminder that of course the greatest business fields, the richest markets of the world, are the great white nations. America is the greatest of all markets. Then Europe.

American business has invaded Europe finally, after Europe has made a specialty of our market. And it teaches the lesson that business is gained by those who seek it, who equip themselves for it and cater to certain lines of trade.

Just so the trade of Asia and South America will be won by effort, or not at all. It cannot be expected that Asia and South America will come to us and beg to have our goods sold to them. In this one respect the Standard Oil Company is an exemplar.

It has gone all over the world with its tins of oil. And other businesses can do the same. And if we can invade France, we ought to be able to capture Asia and South America and Africa.

We need ships. We need chains of American banks. But, most of all, we need going after the business. What we go for we will get. If we don't go we won't get it.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE

—ON—

President Eliot and the New Religion

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

THERE was put forth on July 21 at Cambridge a sort of Religious Declaration of Independence by the most eminent teacher and scholar in America.

I refer to the address of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, given before the Harvard Summer School of Divinity.

The importance of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was on account of the man who put it forth and the time at which it was issued.

John Brown issued a like proclamation and got himself quickly hanged for his pains.

The marvel is not in what Dr. Eliot says, but in the fact that he says it, and that the people listen without resentment —millions of them having themselves come to the same conclusions.

The truths that Dr. Eliot now expresses were first uttered by Pythagoras six hundred years before Christ; by Socrates; by Jesus of Nazareth; by Seneca the Aristocrat; by Epictetus the Slave; by Marcus Aurelius the Roman Emperor; by Hypatia the first Martyr to the New Thought—torn limb from limb in a Christian Church; in degree by Cassiodorus; by St. Benedict and Francis of Assisi; by Bruno and Galileo; by David Hume; by Thomas Paine, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson; by Voltaire and Jean Jacques Rousseau.

All these stood for the grandeur of the human intellect, and the sweet reasonableness of allowing men to use their brains. And against them, the Church, the Army and the State have ever been in league. For them the hemlock was brewed, the cross erected, the scaffold built; dungeons, fetters, gyves, hunger, disgrace, were their portion, and for them the fagot fires lighted the heavens.

The few who escaped torture did so only by veiling their thoughts and saying things in a language which the many could not understand. All this down to the days of Robert Ingersoll, who sacrificed nothing but the governorship of Illinois.

Dr. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, is the most conspicuous intellectual figure before the American people to-day. His position is one of singular dignity.

Most Conspicuous Intellectual Figure

He resigned his office as active president of Harvard, not on suggestion, request or demand, but of his own free will. No word of reproach has ever been brought against him.

In his presence the quibbler has been quiet and the carper dumb.

Dr. Eliot has ever been alive and alert to the best interests of society, but in expansion he is the prince of diplomats. He has never laid himself open to the charge of being a crank. He is not erratic nor verbose. His appearances are as studied and as carefully timed as were those of Pericles. His utterances are thought out before they are delivered, not afterward.

Dr. Eliot represents high and sane conservation in pedagogy, finance and the whole social order. He, of all men, knows that organization should precede dissolution. Upon his official toga is no autrich nor stain, nor upon his personal and private escutcheon is there a blot.

A million intellectuals in America look to him for guidance. For them he keys the Cosmic Symphony.

Dr. Eliot has always been a conservative, in the sense that he has conserved everything which is valuable, never tearing down the scaffolding as long as it was needed. He represents the established order. He keeps step with the procession. He is in the front rank—but never ahead of it. He is a mouthpiece, not of radicals or idealists or dreamers, but of practical, educated men of affairs.

He is a teacher of teachers.

His social and intellectual position is secure and unassailable.

So much for the man.

As for the audience to whom he delivered his pronunciamento, it was, bear in mind, a divinity school, made up of preachers, old and young, representing various Protestant denominations.

And now comes a man who has been at the head of Harvard College for just forty years, and explains to the students of this divinity school that its teachings of the supernatural have been founded on a fallacy, and that God is the Great Unconscious, working toward the Conscious, with man as his chiefest instrument.

So here, then, is printed the principal points in the proclamation by Dr. Eliot. The title of the address is

"THE NEW RELIGION."

"The New Religion will not be based upon authority. The future generation is ready to be led, not driven.

"In the New Religion there will be no personification of natural objects; there will be no deification of remarkable human beings, and the faith will not be racial or tribal.

Joy and Life; Not Sorrow and Death.

"The New Religion will not teach that character can be changed quickly; it will admit neither a sudden conversion in this world nor a sudden paradise in the next.

"The Christian Church has substituted for human sacrifices the burning of incense. The New Religion will get rid of these things, for they give a wrong conception of God.

"The New Religion will not think of God as a large and glorified man, or a king, or a patriarch. It will not deal chiefly with sorrow and death, but with joy and life. It will believe in no malignant powers.

"God will be so imminent that no intermediary will be needed. For every man God will be a multiplication of infinities. This religion rejects the idea that man is an alien or fallen being who is hopelessly wicked.

"It will be a religion of 'All Saints.' It will respect all lovely human beings. It will have no place for obscure dogmas or mystery. It will include and comprehend all persons of good will, for, after all, they alone are civilized.

"In past times, to the sick and downtrodden, death has been held out as compensation. The New Religion will not make such promises. In the New Religion there will be no supernatural element; it will place no reliance on anything but the laws of nature.

"It will admit no sacraments, except natural, hallowed customs, and it will deal with all natural interpretations of such rites. Its priests will strive to improve social and industrial conditions. The New Religion will not attempt to reconcile people to present ills by the promise of future compensations. The advent of just freedom for mankind has been delayed for centuries by such promises.

"Prevention will be the watchword of the New Religion. It cannot supply consolation as offered by old religions, but it will reduce the need of consolation.

"Pain formerly was considered a just punishment, but now human sufferings will be attacked surely and quickly. The New Religion will not even imagine the justice of God.

"Based on the two great commandments of loving God and one's neighbor, the New Religion will teach that he is best who loves and serves best, and the greatest service will be to increase the stock of good will.

"One of the greatest evils of to-day is that people work with hearts full of ill-will to the work and the employer.

"The New Religion will foster the new virtue—the love of truth. The true end of all religions and philosophy is to teach man to serve his fellow man, and this religion will do this increasingly. It will not be bound by dogma or creeds; its workings will be the training in the development of co-operation, kindness and good will."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

YESTERDAY Pa sent me to Summer school. Ma didn't want me to study too hard, but Pa sed I had to go to Summer school. The reeson I want him to study all the year round, sed Pa, is beekaus I am a wise old owl, & I dount want my son to say wen he grows up that his father had anything on me. I think it is perfectly ridiculus, sed Ma. Never-the-less, Pa sed, he must go, & I went. The teacher asked me to rite a composishun about The Rise & Fall of Rome. Wen I got hoam last nite I showed it to Pa, & he sed That is a pipe, that is the ceelest thing to rite about wich I have ever heard of. Take pure pench & paper, Pa sed, & rite what I dicktate, & then Pa sed:

The Rise & Fall of Rome was one (1) of the gratest things in modern histry. That isn't modern histry, sed Ma. Any ivory head knows that. Will you please be silent, sed Pa, & let me tell Bobbie what I am going to tell him. The Rise & Fall of Rome, Pa sed, was brung about by many condishuns. Rome, wich sat upon her seven (7) hills, was a bustled city, with meny good gurls than thare are in Somerville, & meny tuff guys than thare are in Charlestown. At first Rome wasent doing anything, seebec rising or failing. Rome was jest setting on her seven (7) hills. After a while Rome dec-bided that she wud do a little rising, so Rome got busy with the old baking powder, & began to rise. The more she rose, the more the old bliss. The more she rose, the more the old baking powder beegan to work, & she got vary heevy in the chest. In other words, Pa sed, Rome got so swelled up that she was neerly ready to bust. The Roman men dident do anything but go to the baths, & the Roman ladies dident do anything but flirt with the senators. Eeven the little boys & girls turned into loafers, sed Pa.

Jest wen things was at their worst, Pa sed, along came a hansum old barbarian naimed Attila. He was a Hun, wich is a race that has never been heard of since. He took a big army to the walls of Rome, & sent a letter to the emperor. It read like this Dear Emperor: Our Mister Hunary will call on you at noon tomorrow. He will expeck you to give him the keys to the city. If you do not give him sed keys, we are going to march in & talk them anyway.

That was the beginning of the end, sed Pa. The Roman peepul thought that as a rule Mister Attila was a josh, & they dident do anything. Then along came all the Huns, with Mister Attila ahed of them, & what they did to Rome was a shame. They simply licked the shins off the noebel Latin race, sed Pa, & Rome fell. I once rote a poem, sed Pa, wich was published in one of the leading paipers in Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, wich went like this:

Wen I feel like staying away from hoam,
I think of the rise & fall of Rome.
The aneer is, I often haee sed,
Dount let high hiring swell yure hed.

That is a vary poor composishun, sed Ma. I think I cud rite a better one with a mucilage brush, Ma sed.

Is that so, sed Pa. He was awful mad. He made me tear up all the sheets wich I had ritten, & then he sed to me, cum on, Bobbie, we will let yure mother rite the essay & you & me will go down to the club. So we went to the club & Pa beat a old pal of his at billiards. The old pal almost had the game won, but Pa kicked him so hard that he lost the game. Then Pa took me hoam & he felt so good that he bought me sum ice cream on the way.
